Planning Board says no to Marion Street lot

Maryann Delaney still does not have a suitable houselot on Marion Street. The planning board turned down a plan proposed for a 1.3 acre lot on December 6. The vote was unanimous.

Her parents are Barbara and Paul Delaney. They own considerable land off Marion Street near the Apple Monument on Chestnut Street.

The Delaneys had provided a lot of land for her sister, and wanted to provide one for Maryann, on which she could build a home.

Marion Street was not accepted, for the Official Map when it was voted back about 1973. Maryann had to take her case to the Board of Appeals.

Her case was granted but with the usual stipulations in an Official Map case. She would have to have the road paved to Chestnut Street. One figure for the cost of such paving was about $100,000.

With the aid of former selectman Danny Gillis Maryann took the case to the special town meeting of October 24. Many of her friends were present. The town meeting voted that Marion Street, the entire 1.4 miles of it, is to be on the Official Map.

That, some people say, should have solved the problem, but it did not.

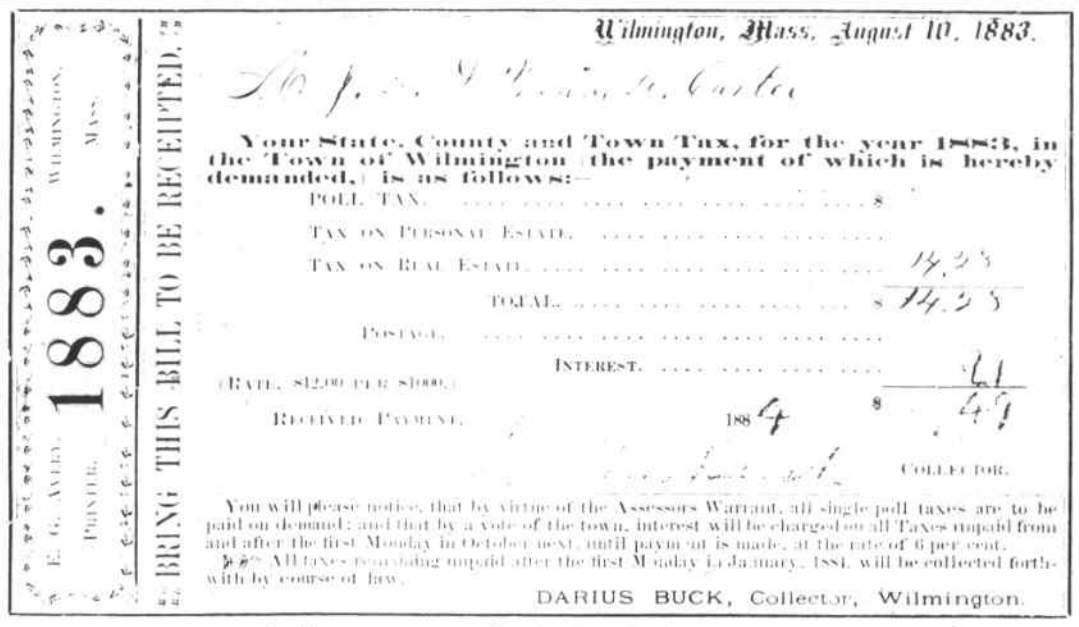

Marion Street as it stands is a narrow one, on a 50 foot right-of-way.

A few weeks ago a plan was submitted to the planning board vy civil engineer Ken Miller. The plan delineated a lot of land of 1.3 acres, on the east side of Marion use for the use of Maryann Delaney. The street was shown as it is, a narrow road of 50 foot right-of-way.

That plan has been under consideration for a while. The question came up in the December 6 meeting. Shold the members sign that plan?

Unanimously the members voted no. They stated that the plan does satisfy the Massachusetts General Laws, and in particular Section 81L of Chapter 41.

That section provides that, in the opinion of the planning board, a lot of land shall be on a way having "no sufficient width, suitable grades, and adequate construction to provide for the needs of vehicular traffic, in relation to the proposed use of the land abutting or served thereby, and for the proposed installation of municipal services to serve such land."

Wilmington, Mass. August 10, 1883.

To P. [illegible] Carter,

Your State, County and Town Tax, for the year 1883, in the Town of Wilmington (the payment of which is hereby demanded,) is as follows:—

POLL TAX. 8

TAX ON PERSONAL ESTATE. 14.23

TAX ON REAL ESTATE. 14.23

TOTAL. 8

POSTAGE.

INTEREST. 61

(RATE, $12.00 PER $1000.)

RECEIVED PAYMENT, 1884 8 47

COLLECTOR.

You will please notice, that by virtue of the Assessors Warrant, all single poll taxes are to be paid on demand; and that by a vote of the town, interest will be charged on all Taxes unpaid from and after the first Monday in October next, until payment is made, at the rate of 6 per cent.

All taxes remaining unpaid after the first Monday in January, 1884, will be collected forthwith by course of law.

DARIUS BUCK, Collector, Wilmington.

E. G. AVERY, PRINTER. 1883. BRING THIS BILL TO BE RECEIPTED.

Taxes late?

Real estate taxes not paid by the close of business on Wednesday are late. This bill of 100 years ago was also paid late, incurring a penalty of 21 cents. Late charges were assessed at 6 percent interest then. The penalty is now 14 percent. The tax collector was Darius Buck, who lived in the house later known as the "Henny Penny" house, now the home of the Callan family.

Lights up

Holiday lighting ceremonies will be held on Wilmington Common at 6:30 p.m. Friday. Town employees were busy last week installing newly purchased lights on the trees on the common. Bob Allen is shown working in the "Skyworker" bucket.

State will hold off bids on bridge for New Boston Street

Nicki Johnson, president of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce has received a letter from the state Commissioner of the Department of Public Works, concerning progress on the bridge over the railroad at the Woburn - Wilmington line. In Woburn it is termed the New Boston Street bridge. In Wilmington the name is the Woburn Street bridge.

Commissioner Robert T. Tierney told Mrs. Johnson that decisions that have been made in company with Congressman Markey and Reps. Barrett and Paleologas are:

The DPW is to proceed with the design of a replacement structure, including the necessary roadway approaches. It will schedule a public hearing for the proposed project in Woburn early in 1984.

However, the State DPW will not advertise for construction bids until such a time as the status of the two projects for improvements to Routes 129 and the I-93 interchange, and for the construction of a new interchange between Routes 128 and 129 on I-93 have been determined.

The commissioner closed his letter with a hope that the decisions reasonably recognize the position of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Town of Wilmington, as well as the needs of the City of Woburn for the "restored continuity of New Boston Street."

Gustus family

Newly appointed Middlesex County Treasurer Bill Gustus poses with his family. On Bill's lap are Kelly and Casey. Theresa is holding John.

Gustus named county treasurer

It is a long way from the basketball courts of Wilmington to county treasurer with green arm bands and a visor over one's forehead, so to speak, but Bill Gustus made it.

Bill was a star basketball player in Wilmington High school back in 1971. He also played on the Town League and in a Lowell League. In fact he is still playing basketball.

Last Saturday, the county commissioners voted to appoint Gustus as temporary county treasurer, to serve for a term of about 16 months.

Gustus' appointment attracted considerable media attention, mainly due to the continued attention given his predecessor, Rocco Antonelli. Antonelli resigned last week, after agreeing to a $5250 fine to settle his case. He had earlier gone through a trial for conflict of interest, with the outcome a mistrial.

Gustus' path to that office led through the Peace Corps, which he and his wife joined some years ago, after he had graduated from Weslayan University and the New England School of Law. They were sent to Kuala Lumpur, in the Malay States, for their tour of duty.

After returning to this country, he established a law practice, then ran unsucsessfully for state senate. He then became an aide to County Commissioner Thomas Larkin of Bedford. Last year, he was appointed county administrator, and during the summer he served as temporary administrator of the Middlesex County Hospital.

Theresa is the former Theresa DuBois of Wilmington. The couple adopted two Chinese children, Casey Ryan and Kelly Ann, and there is a new baby brother, John Patrick. They live on Burlington Avenue in Wilmington.

Bill is the son of Rita Gustus of Brand Avenue, and Theresa the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor DuBois, formerly of Wilmington and now Pennsylvania residents.

Charles River bought by Bausch & Lomb

Officials at the Charles River Breeding Laboratorires, North Wilmington foresee a brighter future, now that the company is to be acquired by Bausch & Lomb. Charles River is the world's largest commercial supplier of laboratory animals, for biomedical and other scientific research.

The agreement, announced last week, calls for an exchange of stock. Bausch & Lomb shares (1.75) will be given for each share of Charles River. Dr. Henry Foster, founder and president, who owns 29 percent interest in Charles River, has agreed to vote his stock in favor of the transaction. Both he and Daniel E. Gill of Bausch & Lomb, expect that the past performance of Charles River will continue in the years ahead.

Bausch & Lomb is the world's leading manufacturer of contact lenses. It manufactures and markets many quality optical products and a diversified line of scientific instruments for use by business, industry, education, research and clinical medicine. Bausch & Lomb also recently acquired another Wilmington firm, Polymer Technology, Inc. of Industrial Way. That agreement was announced in early October.

Vice President James L. Foster of Charles River told the Town Crier that he believes employees and management alike will benefit as a result of the agreement. The agreement, he said, will result in a pooling of interests by the two companies.

Santa's workshop

The Recreation Department's 11th Annual Santa's Workshop Program will be held in the July 4th Building (little white building next to the common).

This Christmas special is for all little Wilmington boys and girls. The workshop will be open Sunday, Dec. 11 from 1 to 5 p.m. and on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Dec. 12 and 13 from 6:30 to 8.

Santa and his elves will distributing Christmas balloons, candy canes, caroling books and snapshots of the youngsters on his lap. The program is free and co-sponsored by Sweetheart Plastics and the Recreation Department.

Joan Wandell weds Charles Duffy III

Joan Wandell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wandell of Shawsheen Avenue, Wilmington, became the bride of Charles Duffy, III on Saturday, October 15.

Father William Smith performed the ceremony before the altar of St. Dorothy's Church.

Serving as attendants were Susan, Nancy and Kathy Wandell and Kim McDonough, all of Wilmington and all sisters of the bride. Lynn Webster of Stoneham, niece of the groom acted as flower girl.

David Duffy of Wilmington, served his brother as best man while ushering duties were in charge of James Duffy, of Woburn, also a brother of the groom; Edward Magee of Woburn and John Hawkins of Steep Falls, Maine, close friends of the groom.

The new Mrs. Duffy is a graduate of Our Lady of Nazareth Academy, Wakefield and is currently employed by Undercover Ware, Inc.

Her husband is the son of Charles Duffy, Jr. of Aldrich Road, Wilmington and Dorothea Holmes of Lakeview Avenue, Reading. He is self-employed.

Following a wedding trip to Old Orchard, Maine, the couple is now living in Woburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duffy III

Nuclear arms film 'Gods of Metal'

Wilmington area residents will have an opportunity to further consider the nuclear arms race by attending a public meeting to be held Sunday, Dec. 11, at 8:30 p.m. in St. Thomas Church, 126 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington. (Please note that this is a change of time).

The film "Gods of Metal" will be shown and a guest speaker from the Greater Boston Physicians for Social Responsibility, John Butler, will address the audience.

For those who viewed the ABC-TV movie "The Day After" on November 20, this will be an excellent opportunity to get together with other local residents to discuss this most important issue. It is hoped that a working and/or study group will be formed after this meeting.

Call Mrs. Helen Durkee of Wilmington at 657-7075 for more information on this event. Those who cannot attend this event, but wish to be involved in ongoing activities are urged to call the same number.

Proposed I-93 interchange 6 or 7 years off — Miceli

To be realistic, Rep. James Miceli told the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce on December 6, the problem of an interchange for Wilmington, Andover and Tewksbury on Route 93 will not be solved for about six or seven years. The key to the problem is that it involves decisions by both the state and Federal government.

The town managers of Wilmington Andover met recently with State Department of Public Works (DPW) Commissioner Robert T. Tierney about the problem. Tierney told the two men that the towns should provide study funds in order to speed up the study process.

In any event, Miceli said, the Federal government feels that, with the proposed new interchange, the entrance to Route 125, through Wilmington to Haverhill should be closed. There are problems in all three towns that should be solved, Miceli said.

Tewksbury needs access to Route 93; Andover needs a proper exit onto Route 93 for the burgeoning industrial complex growing in the Ballardvale area, and Wilmington needs traffic relief for the growing use of Ballardvale Street by Andover industry.

The Traffic Study Committee of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce has been studying the problem, and has helped to arrive at answers about what should be done to the Ballardvale Street area. Participating in the studies have been Selectman Rocco DePasquale, Reps. Mike Barrett and Jim Miceli and State Senator Robert Buell. They met with the governor a few weeks ago.

About $800,000 in Economic Development funds are available, but about half as much again is needed to complete the widening of Ballardvale Street because of the Andover traffic.

Holiday eating

Dennis Upper, Ph.D., of the Lahey clinic Department of Behavioral Medicine and Psychiatry, will discuss "Controlling Holiday Eating and Drinking" Tuesday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m.

Part of the monthly Medical Topics Lecture Series, the lecture will be held in the auditorium of the Lahey Clinic Medical Center, Burlington and is open to the public free of charge. For more information, call 273-8733.

Miceli believes the study has arrived at the point where the state will be calling for bids in the spring.

Land takings, leading to a construction of the Route 129 interchange, should start in about one and a half to two years, Miceli told the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. he was particularly anxious to have it understood that he was speaking of land takings near the interchange with Route 93.

The land takings for the improvement of Route 129 near Wilmington square, he said "is another problem." He hopes the state can get to that soon.

Miceli hopes to have a meeting with the DPW Commissioner on Dec. 13. The Burlington Avenue bridge, he declared, is "totally unsafe."

At the present time he is not worried about the Woburn Street bridge (called New Boston Street in Woburn), the one that leads from Wilmington to the newly industrialized part of North Woburn.

But, he said, there is a road being built by a private developer. That developer is "pulling in" toward the old bridge and if he gets up to the bridge and the bridge is built "it will just strangle this town."

The Harnden Tradition — Part III

Indians killed four in the 'Harnden Massacre'

©Copyright 1983
by Capt. Larz Neilson

Sixteen ninety-nine is the year in which, according to the Harnden Tradition, Capt. William Kidd went through Reading, to the Land of Nod, to bury treasure. It was the last year of the 17th Century. There had been wars between Britain and France in that century, and the Colonials of both countries had taken part.

The 18th Century brought more wars. The first was known in Europe as The War of the Spanish Succession. It was fought to determine who would inherit the throne of that unhappy country.

The reigning queen in Britian at that time was Anne, the last of the Stuart family to possess the British crown. In the Colonial provinces the war was called Queen Anne's War.

John and Benjamin Harnden, brothers, and their families lived in the northern part of Reading, easterly of the common boundary with Woburn. Both were farmers. John was a deacon in the Reading church, which was located on the southerly shores of Lake Quannipowitt. Today that pond is in Wakefield.

Benjamin lived in his father's home.

It is recorded that Benjamin one day had business in Woburn and traveled down the Andover Road to that town. The return was at night. He was possibly riding horseback. He was also possibly driving an oxcart.

In any event Benjamin killed an Indian squaw who was lying drink in the road. She was struck by the horse's hoof, or run over by the wheel of the oxcart.

The death was of course accidental. It occured on the shores of a small pond, known for over 200 years after that as Squaw Pond. That pond was in the present day Wilmington, but within a short distance of the Woburn line. When Main Street was reconstructed in 1927 the pond was filled in. The area is now the front of the garage belonging to Mel Southmayd.

The death of the Indian woman did not cause much excitement, it seems, but it was due to be avenged. The revenge occured on a night when John Harnden was at the church (in today's Wakefield) on church business.

Eaton's account, a Reading history, can be quoted. it appears under the date of 1706.

"This year, five Indians from a party who had attacked Dunstable ventured down to this town, and surprised and attacked the family of John Harnden, who occupied a lonely cottage that was situated in what was then the northwesterly part of Reading, but which, at the incorporation of the town of Wilmington in 1730, was included within the bounds of that town.

"It is said that the cottage, long since gone, stood some 60 or 70 rods southerly of the house now or recently occupied by Jonathan Harnden, of Wilmington, in a pasture, where the cellar and well may still be seen, near a large rock, since called Indian Rock.

"The attack was made in the night-time; Mr. Harnden himself, it is said, was absent, leaving his wife and eight children at home. The Indians descended through the roof of the house (it was a low house) and killed Mrs. Harnden and three children and carried away the rest; but the children were recovered by pursuers. They left the house standing. It was afterward occupied by a French family by the name of Labador, whose business it was to pick to pieces old clothes and make them into new. They wore wooden shoes."

One can always get into arguments about the family of John Harnden and the massacre. One fact stands out. It was a planned raid. There was nothing haphazard. The French military had probably picked the target.

Indian Rock — A large rock in the yard of the Bova family of Marcia Road, Wilmington is known as "Indian Rock." Some of the Harnden children hid from raiding Indians behind the rock.

The target was the Benjamin Harnden family. John's family dwelt some 600 feet southerly and it was by this distance that the raiders misjudged their target. The house stood about 15 or 20 feet northerly of the stone wall that is northerly of the Woburn Street School, and a similar distance from the westerly corner of that wall.

The Town of Reading date for the death of Susanna Harnden (the mother) was Aug. 12, 1707. Eaton puts the year at 1706. There is some reason to believe it occured on July 6, 1705.

Eight children had been born to the Harnden family. Eaton says all were in the home, but two had died; Susannah, born in 1691 and Hephzibah, born in 1701. This is shown by the birth of a second Susanna in 1695, who married Joseph Kendall of Woburn in 1723, and a second Hephzibah, born in 1705, who married Barachius Farnham of Andover in 1723.

The oldest child was Abigail, born in 1692. It was probably she who led or carried children to Indian Rock, several hundred feet to the southwest. Abigail, after the children had been discovered by the Indians, was wounded in the back and thrown into the pond. That pond, now much smaller, still exists at the north end of Marcia Road.

Abigail was rescued, and lived to womanhood. She married (1) Jonathan Nurse, a son or grandson of Rebecca Nurse who was executed in Salem in 1692 as a witch; and (2) Daniel Eames. She became the progenitriss of many of the Eames family of the United States.

Those who lived seem to be Abigail, the second Susanna, John, and the second Hephzibah. Three, then, were carried off by the Indians. They were recovered the next day by pursuers.

"Indian Rock" still is to be seen, near Marcia Road in Wilmington. The Harnden well, which was about halfway between the house and the rock, was filled in about 20 years ago.

John and his family never lived in the massacre house again. It seems they moved in with his brother Benjamin's family.

John remarried, on Dec. 7, 1707. The bride was Sarah Sherman of Lynn. There were two more children, Rachel and Sarah. Rachel became the wife of Johsua Thompson in 1724 and Sarah married Jonathan Temple in 1734.

It seems that the John Harnden family descendants retained the old Richard Harnden house on High Street for several generations. This, however, cannot be proven.

There was another home about 200 feet easterly, and it can be presumed that this became the home of the Benjamin Harnden family. The home was that which was identified as a Gowing house by the Rev. Mr. Noyes of Wilmington in 1880. It was burned down by the state, as a part of the process of clearing land for Interstate 93, in the 1950s.

Which family, John or Benjamin, lived in which home is open to dispute. As a guess, the second home was built earlier than Mr. Noyes reported, for one or the other family.

And the four sons of John, one of the children who hid behind Indian Rock, were to play a big part in Wilmington's history of the American Revolution. They seem to have been born in the home of Richard and Mary Harnden.

Wilmington girl in telethon for Children's Hospital

My name is April Murray. I'm 11 years of age. I know I'm a little young to be asking something like this, but here it goes.

How much does it cost to hold a telethon?

How and where could one be held?

Here is why I was wondering.

I had a very close friend who had Cystics Fibrosis. Her name was Patty Jacobs. Her family and herself were so close I considered them an aunt, an uncle and cousins.

She'd go into the hospital months apart at a time. She'd get worse and then better again. Soon the months got closer and closer. She got worse and worse. Only better a little.

The week of July 17 she was released from the hospital for the last time.

She had gotten out in enough time to make plans for her birthday. We went to her cottage for a weekend. She had turned 10 on July 24, but she was only to live on 10 less for than four weeks.

A few days after her birthday she was admitted back into the Children's Hospital. She was so bad I had a feeling she would not make it. I know a person should be confident, but that would not have helped.

After almost two weeks Patty passed away. Her parents and brother said that she went very peacefully.

C.F. is something that affects the lungs and digestive system. Most kids with C.F. are very thin, not very active and don't weigh much.

It is very frightening to see someone in pain with tubes of all kinds in them, seeing someone knowing that they are going to die early, or that they re not going to be as active as others.

That's why I'm writing. There are telethons for Multiple Sclerosis and Muscular Dystrophy, but have you ever heard of a telethon for Cystics Fibrosis?

That is what I hope to try, to help with.

It means so much to me and imagine how much it would mean to the kids who have it.

That is why I'm writing to you. Of all channels because as far as I can see you are specialized in telethons.

I sure do hope that you can help. I would not want that to happen to many more kids.

Thank you very much for taking the time to read this.

Sincerely,
April Murray
76 Salem St.,
Wilmington, Ma.

April Murray, 11 years old, a student in the sixth grade in the Woburn Street School wrote that letter three months ago to a Boston tv station. She did not receive an answer from that station.

But she did get an answer a few weeks later from another person, in a different station. her mother Joyce had sent a copy of the letter to a friend of her husband, Tom Bergeron on Channel 4. Eventually the letter got into the hands of Ken Tucci of that station.

Maybe Ken was having a bad day. Maye the letter cheered him up. He wrote to April on November 22.

Susan Leavitt, too, had called April. She wanted her to go on the telethon for the Children's Hospital and April agreed.

The telethon for the Children's Hospital will be this Saturday on Channel 4. Most of those who are to appear are adults.

But sometime betwen 10 and 11 p.m. there will be an 11-year-old girl on the tv screen. Her name is April Murray. Her mother is a daughter of the Jim Fields who works in the body shop of Wallace Motors, and, for those with a long memory, a granddaugher of the Fred Fields who 70 years ago sold groceries around Silver Lake from a horse and wagon.

April's daddy is James Murray, and he is in insurance.

Patty Jacobs, the little girl who died?

She was the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Warren Jacobs. Rev. Jacobs was the minister of the South Tewksbury Methodist Church about five years ago. Maybe Patty will be watching from a special Heaven as April speaks next Saturday night.

Dr. Maltz opens practice in Tewksbury

Henry Maltz, M.D., in affiliation with the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, has announced the opening of his office practice in internal medicine at 1455 Main St., Tewksbury.

Nicholas A. Balog, director of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, cited Tewksbury as a rapidly growing area attracting a number of new residents, particularly young families. Balog noted, "Although Tewksbury is experiencing a rapid growth rate, in comparison to other Massachusetts cities and towns, it has fewer physicians available per thousand population."

"The reasons encouraging the opening of the Tewksbury office," he continued, "are most similar to the need community residents expressed several years ago for the Regional Health Center in Wilmington. Prior to this comprehensive ambulatory care facility being built, Wilmington and surrounding communities were without medical services. In the past five years alone, over 70,000 individuals have been treated at the Wilmington site. Many have come from Tewksbury and beyond. Individuals who presently receive medical services at the Health Center are encouraged to continue with their primary care givers at that location. Dr. Maltz's office location will provide Tewksbury and other area residents currently without a primary care physician the opportunity to have a personal physician, Balog added.

"After an extensive search, we have affiliated with Dr.Maltz, a physician who epitomizes the primary care philosophy advocated at the Health Center, namely disease prevention and health promotion," said Balog. "When necessary, Dr. Maltz will hospitalize patients at Choate Hospital in Woburn or other locations based on the patient's needs," Balog concluded.

Dr. Maltz, the only board certified internist in Tewksbury, comes from Newton - Wellesley Hospital where he has most recently served as the senior attending physician in the Department of Medicine, as well as the attending physician in the Intensive Care Unit. He received his medical degree from Tufts University School of Medicine and holds a Ph.D. in chemistry from Yale University. Among the honors he has earned include membership in Alpha Omega Alpha (an honors society for physicians) and Phi Beta Kappa, and pre- and post-doctoral fellowships from the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Maltz's office is scheduled to open December 2. He will be available for patient appointments day and evening hours and for telephone consultations evenings, weekends and holidays.

Health Center holiday programs

"Beat the Holiday Blues," a program on coping with holiday depression and "Alcohol Awareness" will be presented at the Regional Health Center in Wimington.

"Alcohol Awareness" is a seminar on alcohol dependency and its effects on the alcoholic's life and that of the family members. Diagnosis and treatment of alcohol-related problems will be discussed by Arlin E. Brown, psychiatrist and John H. Heckler, Ph.D., psychologist. Both professions have several years of experience counseling individuals and families and alcohol-related problems.

This program will be held Wednesday, December 14 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and is free and open to the public. A question and answer period will follow the formal presentation.

On Thursday, December 15 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Cindy Levine, L.I.S.S.W., social services coordiantor will conduct "Beating the Holiday Blues." She will define "holiday blues," explain how to recognize the symptoms and why people often feel so blue during a joyous season.

"Holiday Blues" will also include common causes, coping strategies, recognizing the need for professional help and th eoptions for professional help and the options for professional assistance.

Following the presentation, Dr. Heckler will join Miss Levine for a quesiton and answer period and group discussion.

Handouts will be available as well as a self-test on depression to help people identify problem areas. The group will 'brainstorm" ideas for dealing with those problems.

Cindy Levine counsels individuals and families on a short-term besis to help them overcome crises and depression at no charge as a community service of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, a divison of Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc.

To reserve space at either free community program, please call 657-3910, ext. 567. All names will be kept confidential.

Keough honored

Mel Keough, right, who served five years as the state appointee to the Wilmington Housing Authority, was honored on Saturday afternoon at a party at the Deming Way Community Hall. WHA Chairman Bill Strob (in plaid shirt) presented him with a plaque, and citations were also presented by Rep. Jim Miceli, Sen. Bob Buell and Dan Ballou, chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

Prayer to the Holy Spirit

Oh Holy Spirit, Thou who are all knowing, who brightens every path that I may reach my idea, Thou who giveth me this divine gift of forgiving and forgetting wrongs done unto me, and who in every instant of my life art with me. I'd like in this short dialogue to affirm my gratitude for all your blessings and re-affirm once again that I never want to part from Thee though the illusion of material things abound.

My desire is to be with Thee and all my loved ones in perpetual grace. Thank You for Your mercy on me and mine. (person should pray three consecutive days without revealing petition. Within three days, grace will be attained regardless of how difficult the petition may be). Publish this prayer once grace attained. Grateful for grace attained.

CLOCK TOCK

by THE CLOCKFOLK OF NEW ENGLAND
Wilmington

Wooden Geared Clocks are among one of the most fascinating mechanisms ever derived from American ingenuity. The term implies exactly that — the clockworks is made entirely of wood. Although wooden geared clocks were first made centuries ago in the Black Forest of Germany, the amount was very limited, as each was individually hand crafted. In America, by 1810, their manufacture had developed to the point of being mass-produced. Eli Terry is credited with the invention and development of the first mass-produced wooden works clock in 1808. For the next 30 years, nearly every clock made in America was a wooden works clock. The cost was low, the performance dependable. These clocks were chiefly manufactured in Connecticut, using local resources to the fullest and best advantage. The boards making up the sides of the mechanism were of local oak, the gears were made of local American cherry, and the axles were cut from mountain laurel. All three woods were, and still are, common throughout Connecticut.

Squirt BI squad Apple champs

The Tewksbury Squirts BI team became the Baldwin Apple Tournament champions this past Thanksgiving weekend with wins in the preliminary games over Billerica II, Melrose and Quincy to advance them into the final game with the Billerica I squad.

Tewksbury vs Billerica II

In the preliminary games, Tewksbury first played a gutsy Billerica II team, and early in the first period Billerica scored twice to take the early 2-0 lead. Tewksbury then came back to get its' only first period goal from Kevin Nazzaro on a play set up by a pass from Robert Bussey.

In the second period Tewksbury seemed to be back on track and scored five unanswered goals. Getting the first goal for Tewksbury in the second period was Brian Andriolo, with an assist from Mark McConnell. Ed Henderson then followed with a goal that was set up by the fine passing of Robert Bussey and Anthony Lodi.

Mark McConnell got the next goal on a nice play that started on a pass from Matt Ferro. Robert Bussey picked up the next score on a nifty pass from Jason Hughes that was followed minutes later by a goal from Mark McConnell with an assist to Matt Ferro. This goal was the 100th goal for the team this season. The second period ended with Tewksbury holding a 6-2 lead.

In the third period the scoring continued for Tewksbury with Robert Bussey getting his second, third, and fourth goals of the game with assists going to Kevin Nazzaro (two), Jason Hyde and Mark McConnell.

Brian Andriolo and Kevin Nazzaro finished the scoring in the third period with a goal apiece to account for the final 12-2 score. Picking up assists on the final two goals were Mark McConnell, Robert Bussey and Mark Boucher. Robert Bussey picked up both the hat trick and playmaker awards for this game, while Mark McConnell notched a playmaker award for his three assists.

Tewksbury vs Melrose

In the second preliminary game, Tewksbury played a weak Melrose squad and again Tewksbury dominated the play.

Scoring the first goal for Tewksbury was Robert Bussey on a pass from Kevin Nazzaro that was followed by a goal by George DeGregorio set up by the fine passing and hard work of Mark Boucher and Anthony Lodi. Ed Henderson then scored a goal with a hard shot from close in that the Melrose goaltender had no chance to stop. Mark Boucher picked up the assist on this goal, as he seemed to be involved in every play of the game.

Billy Fynn, Mark McConnell and Mark Boucher each scored unassisted goals in the first period with Matt Ferro getting the final goal in the first period on a play set up by Brian Andriolo and Mark McConnell.

Getting the scoring started again in the second period was Ed Henderson, who scored on a play set up by the sharp passing of Jason Hyde and Mark Boucher. George DeGreorio got his second goal of the game on a play again set up by the passing of Mark Boucher.

Ed Henderson then followed with his third goal of the game on a nice passing play started by George DeGregorio. Brian Andriolo finished the scoring in the second period on a nifty pass from Anthony Lodi.

In the third period the only goal scored came off the stick of Robert Bussey unassisted to give Tewksbury a 12-0 win. Ed Henderson picked up the hat trick in this game, while Mark Boucher got the playmaker award.

Tewksbury vs Quincy

In this, the final game of the preliminary series, the Tewksbury team took on a strong Quincy team and this proved to be the first real test for the Tewksbury squad

In the first period, Quincy got on the scoreboard first with a quick goal that Tewksbury soon got back when Matt Ferro scored off a nice pass from Brian Andriolo. Robert Bussey then scored late in the first period to give Tewksbury a lead of 2-1 going into the second period.

Mark McConnell and Anthony Lodi both got credited with assists on the Bussey goal. Quincy scored first in the second period to tie the score at 2-2. Tewksbury's Brian Andriolo broke the tie in the middle of the second period when he scored on a play set up by the hard work and nifty passing of Matt Ferro and Mark McConnell. This gave Tewksbury a one goal lead that they took into the final period.

In the third period Quincy scored early to again tie the score. Minutes later they scored again to take the lead for the second time in the game by a score of 4-3. George DeGregorio then scored for Tewksbury, with assists from Mark Boucher and Mark McConnell to tie the score again.

Then with only four minutes left in the game, Mark McConnell scored on a play set up by Brian Andriolo and Matt Ferro to put Tewksbury ahead once again.

With 15 seconds left to play in the game the referee made a very controversial call and awarded the Quincy team a penalty shot. Tewksbury goalie Ricky Killion, who had been outstanding throughout the tournament, was more than ready for the shot and easily turned it wide of the net. The Tewksbury team then held on to the 5-4 lead as the last seconds ticked off.

Tewksbury vs Billerica

In this the final game of the tournament, Tewksbury found itself up against a formidable opponent in this Billerica I team.

In the first period both teams skated very hard at both ends of the rink, with both goaltenders forced to make several key saves. Then late in the first period, Matt Ferro managed to slip one by the Billerica goaltender on a play set up by Mark McConnell. Both teams continued the hard play right up to the buzzer ending the first period.

With Tewksbury holding a slim 1-0 lead, the second period began where the first had ended with both teams working very hard.

Early in the second period, Matt Ferro got his second goal of the game on a play that was set up by the fine passing of Anthony Lodi. This score was followed by a goal by Kevin Nazzaro, with assists to Jason Hughes and Robert Bussey. The second period ended with the Tewksbury team leading, 3-0.

In the third period the Billerica team came out and scored early, cutting the Tewksbury lead to 3-1. Both teams continued skating and working hard at both ends of the ice, with Killion being called upon several times to make great saves to maintain the small lead. When the buzzer sounded to end the game, Tewksbury had held on to the 3-1 score for the victory and tournament championship.

Tewksbury defensemen Anthony Lodi, Jason Hyde, Jason Hughes and Billy Flynn turned in outstanding performances in all four tournament games and were very instrumental in the Quincy and Billerica I victories where the scores were close and the opposing teams had many outstanding skaters and shooters. These boys played strong defensive games and were largely responsible for holding the opposing teams to only seven goals while their team's offense scored 32 goals to win the tournament.

Congratulations to head coach Tom Fraser, assistant Tom Botto and each member of the Tewksbury Squirt BI team on a job well done.

Tourney champs Tewksbury's Squirt BI squad celebrates after recently clinching the Baldwin Apple Tournament. See story above.

Eighth graders roll past Woburn, 41-27

The Wilmington Youth Basketball traveling teams began their second season this past weekend. The eighth grade team won both games it played, the new seventh grade team lost its' first two games, but gave a good account of itself. The newly formed sixth grade team also lost its inaugural game Sunday afternoon.

Saturday afternoon the two older teams traveled to Woburn to play the Woburn Boys Club. The eighth grade team led by Mike Lombard took up where they left off last season, defeating Woburn 41-27. Lombard led the scoring with 17 points, Eric Penttinen followed with seven. Also scoring were Joe McMenimen (four) and Pat Nally (three). Don Corson, Tim Moran, Tony DeSantis and Paul Maiella all had two points each. Leading the defensive action were Tom Moran, Danny Woods, Tim Fay, Jonathan Oliver and Kevin Ouellette.

The seventh graders lost their first game, 44-26 with Woburn needing a fourth period surge to finish the game. Steve Hanafin led the scoring with six points, Jon Masse hit five, while Jeff Botte and Jeff Bowen each had four points. Mike Buonopane scored three and Brian Davis and Ron Pennie hit for two. Also doing a fine job were Neil Penttinen, Brian Pupa, Mark Palmisano, Mark Vigliotti, Andy Parr and Jason Oliver.

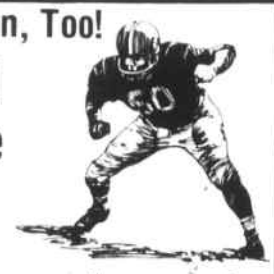

Sunday's basketball action saw Wilmington entertain Methuen at the new home court for the Wilmington traveling team, the Shawsheen Tech gym. Wilmington's newest entry, a sixth grade team recently formed, played its first game, losing, 37-17.

Linehan earns letter

Mary Linehan, a two-time letter winner from Wilmington High School, recently earned her first letter in field hockey from Boston University.

Linehan, one of 10 freshmen on the squad, helped the Terriers to a 6-12 record in their second season of Division I play.

"Our record is not indicative of the learning process or the improved level of play that the team showed throughout the season," said coach Sally Starr. "The lack of consistency is what hurt us the most throughout the season, and that was due to our inexperience. The fact that our scoring output dramatically increased (14 goals in the last seven games) is a real bright spot in looking toward next year. I expect a 100 percent turnaround in our record."

A Merrimack Valley Conference second team All-Star, Linehan, a goaltender, was a member of the field hockey team that won the MVC championship her junior and senior years. She also won the coaches' award for softball last year, and participated on the basketball and softball teams that both went on to win the MVC Championship her senior year.

An electrical engineering major, Linehan is the daughter of Jeffrey and Anne Linehan of Dadant Road.

Free throw contest Saturday

The Friar Croke Council Knights of Columbus and the Wilmington Recreation Department will sponsor their annual Free Throw Contest at the Wilmington High School gym this Saturday, Dec. 10. The contest will be held from noon until 1 p.m. for all age groups.

Competition is for boys and girls in the 11-14 age group. Age determination will be as of January 1, 1984. No prior registration is necessary. Trophies will be awarded to the winners in each category. There will also be an opportunity to advance to the regional and state shootouts.

Softball registration

Wilmington Girls Senior League Softball registration will be held Saturday, Dec. 10 at the Fourth of July Building between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Any girl born August 1, 1968 through July 31, 1971 is eligible, ages 13-15. The registration fee is $20.00. A birth certificate required. For information, call 658-6951 or 658-5689.

Youth hoop from page eight

The boys learned a lot in their first endeavor and are sure to improve. Members of the team include Michael Burns, Mark Bobek, Eric Eisenberg, Larry Flynn, Mike George, Steve Killelea, Joe Mahoney, John Mulloney, Joe McFadyen, Scott Tuxbury, Jamey Robichaud, Chris Riccio and Bob Caruso.

The traveling seventh graders lost to Methuen, 46-27 in their second outing. Steve Hanafin led the scoring with 11 points. Also hitting buckets were Andy Parr with four, Jeff Botte with four along with two points each from Jason Oliver, Jon Masse and Ron Penney. The defensive action was provided by Mark Vigliotti, Mike Buonopane, Brian Pupa, Mark Palmisano, Neil Penttinen and Brian Davis.

The eighth graders stayed on the winning track with an exciting, 52-43 win over a tough Methuen team. A fine team effort was led by Mike Lombard's 12 points and 20 rebounds. Joe McMenimen was close behind with 10 points and eight rebounds.

A well balanced scoring attack had Tony DeSantis hitting nine, Pat Nally, Don Corson, Eric Penttinen and Danny Woods all hit for four points, with Kevin Ouellette, Jonathan Oliver and Tim Fay each scoring two. Paul Maiella, Tim and Tom Moran did the ballhawking.

The Lombards' supporting case included Nally's four rebounds and five assists, Corson and DeSantis with two rebounds each, several steals by others and clutch foul shooting by Woods and DeSantis to put the game on ice late in the fourth quarter.

Next weekend the boys travel to Methuen Saturday and then return home to entertain Everett at Shawsheen Tech Sunday afternoon.

Letter to the sports editor

Time to straighten our priorities

Dear Rick:

Last Thursday, I attended the Tewksbury Redmen football banquet, and while listening to Bob Aylward recap a very difficult season, my mind wandered back to a newspaper article several years ago.

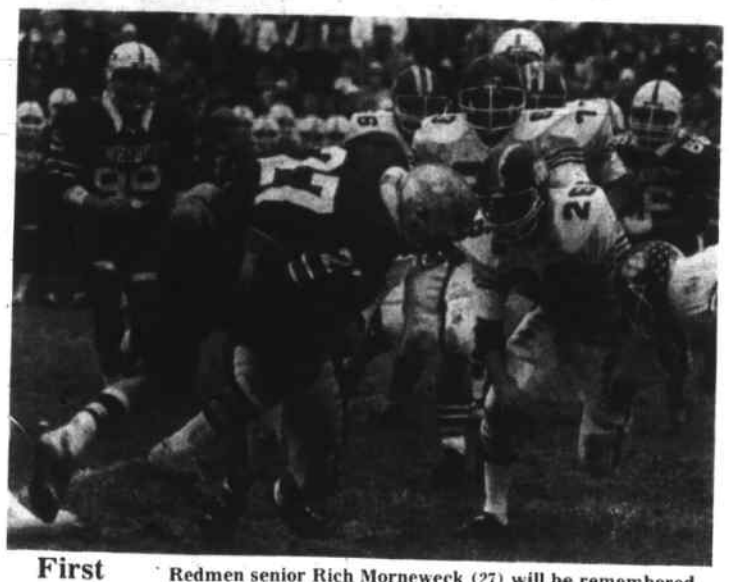

It mentioned how the World Almanac and Book of Facts recently polled 2,000 eighth-grade American pupils to learn the persons they most admire and would want to be like when they grow up.

The youngsters were asked to name their top 30 heroes. Their leading role model turned out to be actor Burt Reynolds. He was followed by such names as Richard Pryor, Alan Alda, Steve Martin, Robert Redford and the late John Belushi.

There was not a single name on the list who was not an entertainer or a sports figure. Not a statesman. Not a scientist. Not an author. Not a painter, musician, sculptor, architect, doctor, lawyer or even an astronaut.

The young people polled would be starting high school the following year. They were born and had grown up in an era of incredible change in almost every field. It had been an age of discovery, of invention, of innovation in a dozen important areas.

Yet no one of them would care to model himself or herself upon a figure who has made a real contribution to the world.

First class Redmen senior Rich Morneweck (27) will be remembered by those who care about people and not just football.

What is wrong here? In the broadest sense, our whole culture is at fault - our educational system, our quality of public life, our unbalanced scale of rewards, our personal and social values.

Societies need role models more than anything else. Youngsters need people they can look up to and emulate. They need public figures who do things for other people more than for themselves. They need examples of concern, of caringness, of compassion, and not just of competition, fame and wealth.

Our heroes and heroines are not people who have done big things, but people who have made it big.

Thursday I watched the undefeated ninth grade football team, led by Brian Aylward, walk up and receive their awards. Then the sophomores, juniors and seniors were all individually mentioned by coach Aylward. Two of his seniors, Richard Morneweck and Steve Gale, will probably not be remembered as great athletes, but for role models and champions in life, you would be hard pressed to find any better.

Sincerely,
Dave J. Mullen

Sports editor's reply: Dave Mullen's letter is the one of the most thoughtful reader opinions to ever cross my desk. All too often our heroes are misplaced and not people who really represent what the natural work ethic is all about. Enjoying sports and having fun with them is fine, but as I have stressed in print for many years, its' high time for everyone who competes, coaches or simply cheers to get their priorities straight. So before Tewksbury hops off the TMHS football bandwagon after one 'bad' year, let's all think about it. Those were people out there on that field.

Ski trips

The first trip for Wilmington's Recreation Department will be Saturday, Dec. 17 to King Ridge, New Hampshire. The cost for luxury coach transportation and lift ticket will be $26.00.

The second recreation trip will be to Cannon Mountain Saturday, Jan. 7. Call the Rec Office at 658-6512 for details.

WRBL

Last Saturday, Dec. 3 marked the beginning of the Recreation Basketball League's twenty-first year. Over 300 boys and girls age nine to 15 were registered. There are 12 teams in the Junior Division (nine-11) and 18 teams in the Intermediate Division (12-15). A late addition to the league is the 15-year-old bracket. More boys and girls of this age are needed.

For those who did not register on time, contact the Rec Office at 658-6512.

Youth sports film

Everyone involved with youth sports should view the film 'Youth Sports - Is Winning Everything?' The film will be presented by the Recreation Department this Saturday and Sunday in the WHS small cafeteria continuously during Rec Basketball.

The 28-minute film examines the problems and pressures facing young athletes who participate in competitive sport programs where often 'winning is everything.' The film is designed to help parents and coaches to step back and examine their role in youth sport programs.

Program openings

Openings still exist in some of the Recreation Department's winter programs. Vacancies exist in baton, swimming, basketball, modeling, ski lessons, ski trips, teen dance workout, ladies fitness, self defense, cross coutry ski clinic, Disney's Magic Kingdom on Ice and special kids Christmas party.

The men's gym night at the North Intermediate School Wednesdays from 7:45 to 9:45 p.m. is already in progress. Local men may attend this informal program at their leisure.

Stocking stuffers

The Recreation Department seems to have hit upon another good idea. Along with the annual Santa's Workshop special, another Christmas bonus is available to Wilmington's holiday shoppers - discount movie tickets. They're going fast this month because many wise shoppers can see them as a perfect stocking stuffer.

The prestige discount tickets to the Woburn and Lawrence cinemas save the movie goer approximately $1.50 per ticket. Call the Rec Office for information.

Ski lessons

The Recreation Department's popular ski lessons program will be held Thursdays for five weeks beginning in January. The program is open to boys and girls in grades three to six. Cost is $38. Call the Rec Office for details.

Wind damage

High winds on Wednesday morning took down a tree and a utility pole in separate locations on Woburn Street in Wilmington. The Tree Department teamed up with a crew from Reading Light to repair the damage.

Curriculum committee meets at North

The North Intermediate School (N.I.S.) Building Curriculum Committee held its first meeting Friday, Oct. 21. Meetings are regularly held every other week. The committee is made up of representatives of the various curriculum departments. Attendance has averaged 11 including the principal and the administrative intern.

The "Nation at Risk" report was handed out at the first meeting to be used as a basis of discussion in future meetings. Dr. Connelly described the structural organization of the Wilmington School Curriculum Committee and how the N.I.S. Building Commitee fits into the overall structure.

The main topic of discussion at the first three meetings has been homework assignments. Some parents had expressed concern that not enough homework was being assigned. Others feel their children are getting too much homework. A homework logsheet form was made up (based on the committee discussion) and distributed to the teachers who normally give homework assignments. These forms were filled out for two weeks in a row and the results were tabulated. When the homework for a typical student was added up it came out close to the stated policy of 90 minutes per night, four nights per week.

The possible mandatory use of homework assignment notebooks, provided by the school, was suggested by one of the committee members at the second meeting. There is feeling both pro and con on this and it is still being discussed. The central question is whether or not students who are currently successful should be required to use a mandatory means of keeping track of their homework assignments.

The desirability of flip-flopping class schedules several times per week was discussed at the Nov. 4 meeting. The faculty is in favor of this change. Dr. Connelly reported that, due to conflicts with outside specialists' schedules, it is not practical to revise this year's schedule. There was a consensus that next year's schedule should flip-flop two days per week.

To date the committee has not discussed the 'Nation at Risk' report in any detail. However, issues of concern to both the administration and the faculty have been brought up, discussed, and action has been taken on several items. The committee has provided a forum in which the committee members, as well as the principal, can bring up their concerns and ideas for school improvement.

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce welcomed 30 new members on December 6 at a party at the Casa di Fior. Among the new members (not in order) are Pat Sullivan of A&S Towing, Walter LaSota of CCH Computax, Peter DeGennaro of Casalot Real Estate, William Regan of Computervision, John Costello of Crusader Paper Co., James Reid of Ferno Forge, Dr. James Ficociello, Hans Finne of Hans H. Finne, Inc., Weston Dubar of Jet Com, Inc., Marilyn Pilcher of Queensway, Phyllis Hull of Scully Signal, Sally Chapman of Sport-About, Supt. of Schools Dr. Carol Sager, Henry Cooper of Terell Corp., Edwin Wilkins of Edward Wilkens Insurance, and Peter Lewis of Wilmington Cold Storage.

Supt. of Schools Dr. Carol Sager, right, congratulates Christine McMenimen and Joan Sullivan, recipients of awards from the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents.

McMenimen, Sullivan honored by superintendents' association

Christine McMenimen and Joan Sullivan, seniors at Wilmington High School, have been selected as the recipients of the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents Certificate of Academic Excellence.

This award is designed to honor high school students who have distinguished themselves in the pursuit of excellence during their high school careers.

The criteria are rank in class among the top five percent academically and personal selection by the superintendent.

The number of awards that can be given out in any one school year is determined by the number of students in the graduating class and is quite restrictive. Wilmington is allowed two certificates.

Christine McMenimen has been elected to the Wilmington High School National Honor Society and is secretary to the Class of 1984. Christine is also president of the Foreign Language Club and serves as a member of the yearbook staff, and the Prom Committee. She is also active on the school softball team and captain of the volleyball team and plans to persue a career in international relations at Georgetown University and Tufts University.

She is the daughter of Joseph and Linda McMenimen.

Joan Sullivan has been elected to the Wilmington High School National Honor Society, Math Honor Society and has recently been selected as Senior Student of the Month. In addition, she is a member of the field hockey, softball and basketball teams. She is also a basketball official for the Town League and has been active in the summer recreation program. Joan is fifth in her class academically and plans to apply to the Unviersity of Lowell, Simmons College and Northeastern University to take up a career in physical therapy.

Joan is the daughter of Roger and Nancy Sumner.

Mittens needed

The volunteer visitors have advised that there is a need for adult mittens for both men and women. Anyone who can donate even one pair to the Center could make a happy Christmas for a needy person.

Christmas social

The Council on Aging Christmas social will be held Thursday afternoon. Any disabled or confined senior who would like to attend the social should call the center by Wednesday afternoon.

Fuel applications

Fuel applications are still being taken at the Center. Those who have questions about the program, should call the Center (657-7595). Shut-in applications will be made out in individual homes.

Arts and crafts whist

The arts and crafts whist party will be held in the Center next Monday afternoon, Dec. 12, starting at 1:30 p.m. The committee purchases many nice gifts from the proceeds derived from the raffles. Prizes are also donated to the arts and crafts committee by the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs.

Senior hot lunch

The senior hot lunch program is served at the West Intermediate School Monday through Friday when school is in session. It is important to make reservations the day before planned participation or on Friday for those wishing a meal all week. it is unfair to seniors who comply with the rules and the women preparing the meals if reservations are not made or meals are not cancelled.

Supplemental Social Security

Elderly people living on a very low income who do not have either real property or personal property over $1500 for a single person of $2250 for a couple, may qualify for Supplemental Social Security Income. Call the Social Security Office in Lowell. There are several things to remember before calling.

Keep in mind that if your name is on a joint bank account whether the money is yours or not, it is considered your personal property. Second, if your resources exceed the limit before you apply and can dispose of the real property within six months and the personal property by three months and still qualify. Check with the Social Security office. Remember also all persons receiving S.S.I. income are subject by law to periodic review.

Videocassette search

I've always been fascinated by gadgetry, but to be honest, I've never really understood that much about it. I guess you would call me the kind of guy who likes to own gadgets, or "toys," if you will, that do unusual things but couldn't figure out how they do what they do if he had a hundred years to study them. The curiosity is there, but that's as far as it goes.

As I've said, though, I have a penchant to own gadgets, and this week I got in the mood to buy a new toy — a videocassette recorder. Even though I've spent a portion of my career working in a television studio, I know very little about home videocassette recorders, so I hit the road to find somebody with the answers to my zillion questions about them.

I stumbled upon a small video leasing store, called Rediffusion, at 214 Main Street in Stoneham, and it was there that I discovered the best way to own a home VCR. Which isn't to own one at all. I'll explain why later.

The sales manager, an energetic and knowledgeable fellow by the name of Steve Masullo, commented that Rediffusion is a relatively new company in this country, although its parent corporation, Redifussion of England, has been in business for years. The Stoneham store, which opened last April, along with four other Rediffusion stores in the Boston area, leases all types of video equipment.

"By that I mean we lease everything," Steve pointed out. "Videocassette recorders, televisions, monitors, cameras, wide screen TVs, even movies."

Steve indicated that the video business has really begun to take off in this country, and Rediffusion is prepared to cater to the wide variety of people who are discovering the convenience of leasing video equipment instead of investing a lot of money in buying it. It was Steve's emphasis on leasing that aroused my interest. He said that leasing video equipment has been a popular trend in Europe, and the benefits of this type of deal are finally spreading here.

"For some reason Europe always seems to get a head start in areas like leasing video equipment," he went on. "Now we in America are beginning to pick up on the trend, and for good reason. Elderly people find it convenient to watch first-rate movies in the comfort of their own home. The film you see in the theatre today will be available on cassette tomorrow, and for an older person, watching it on a home video machine is safer than travelling to a theatre in Boston. Sales people on the road find it convenient to record their favorite TV shows, which can be watched whenever they elect to, not when the networks say they have to. Housewives and working women alike have a chance to see their favorite soap operas at a time that's more convenient for them."

Steve noted that, with a little device called a speed search button, one can zip past commercials with the touch of a finger. "We also have cameras available to our customers on a daily lease basis. That's great for video taping family outings, parties and weddings. The best feature is, you don't have to wait for the film to be developed. You can play the video tape back right away."

He continued: "I've got this one customer who tapes his son's high school football games, and another who has his drag races taped, then he plays the tapes back in slow motion to see what he's doing wrong. I know still another guy who tapes his golf

Café in new Westin Hotel

Back Bay on the Rise

The pace of Back Bay development is raising fears that a once-placid neighborhood is steadily becoming another Manhattan.

By Robert Kilborn Jr.
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

About the color of cocoa powder before you add milk, a bulky panel of precast concrete is hoisted slowly off its berth on a flatbed trailer.

On slender steel cables it rises higher and higher into the afternoon fog until, finally, it reaches the 38th floor. Hands reach out to guide it into place on the western face of the Marriott Hotel, like a missing piece of a huge jigsaw puzzle.

Thus does the Marriott, the next-to-last major section of Copley Place, take shape. Only a glass-enclosed, climate-controlled pedestrian bridge over the street linking Copley Place with the neighboring Prudential Center remains to be built by early 1984.

It's all an impressive feat of engineering, but hardly anyone stops to watch anymore. The Marriott is 70 percent finished, and for most Bostonians the novelty of new construction in their midst has long since worn off. They wait now for the glittering grand opening of Copley Place next February.

If Copley Place were alone, it would be enough to change the face of this city. At 9½ acres along the southern edge of Back Bay, it will feature the Marriott and one other high-rise hotel, the Westin, a shopping center, office complex, 100 apartment units, and three parking garages.

But Copley Place isn't alone. It is only one of five major new construction projects rising in Back Bay, with still more on the drawing boards. Most of these are — or will be — on the main thoroughfare, Boylston Street. And for some here, that is enough to raise fears that their once-placid neighborhood of mostly small businesses and residences is steadily becoming another Manhattan.

"We don't think Copley Place is too much," says Elliott Laffer, president of the Neighborhood Association of the Back Bay, believed to be the largest residents group in the city. He pauses to spread butter on a breakfast bagel and adds: "There is subsequent development, though, that may be. We may wake up one day, five years from now, and say, 'What . . . did we do?' We may not recognize the Back Bay."

The neighborhood is bounded east and west by the Public Garden and the Fenway and north and south by the Charles River and Huntington Avenue. Visitors to Boston know it primarily for its large concentration of quality hotels and ethnic restaurants, its chic Newbury Street shops, and for such landmarks as the John Hancock tower, Public Library, Symphony Hall, and the Prudential and Christian Science centers.

Into that space, however, are also being wedged the massive $100 million state transportation building, the 280-room Four Seasons Hotel, and 399 Boylston Street and One Exeter Place, both large mixed office and retail projects.

That doesn't leave much in the way of open space, which an umbrella group known as the Back Bay Federation particularly laments. In its statement of development goals issued earlier this year, the federation maintains that "available open space should be extended and enhanced by . . . broad sidewalks and landscaped pedestrian walkways." Residential sections, it adds, "must be protected from further commercial encroachment."

Back Bay isn't the only section of Boston that is being built up with the blessing of development-minded Mayor Kevin H. White, who calls this a "world-class city." But the neighborhood has special concerns to be taken into consideration that most of the other sections don't.

In North Reading

Goodwill donation center opens

Residents in the Reading-North Reading area will once again be able to make donations of clothing and household goods to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries.

The agency opened an attended donation trailer in the parking lot of Zayre's, 80 Main Street (Rte. 28), North Reading on Tuesday, December 6.

The attendant will be on duty on Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. No items may be left after hours or on Sundays.

A trailer had been located at the Atlantic Supermarket until two years ago, when it was removed for administrative reasons.

Items accepted include: clothing in good condition (not stained or torn), toys and games, small appliances, drapes and linens, books (except textbooks), dishes, glasses, bric-a-brac, and small furniture.

When the trailer is filled, it is brought to Morgan Memorial's Boston headquarters where handicapped people sort, hang, clean, size and price the clothing for sale at Morgie's Goodwill stores in Greater Boston. The household goods are also processed and priced for sale.

Proceeds from sales are used to help pay the wages of the handicapped people who process the goods.

Holiday festivities at Museum of Science

The holiday season at the Boston Museum of Science brings a Family Night Dec. 9, a special Planetarium program for youngsters, "The Winter Wishing Star," and the Planetarium's traditional December program, "The Christmas Star."

Holiday Night from 6-10 offers a 6:30 showing of "The Winter Wishing Star" to which children under five are admitted free. (Others pay the regular price of 50 cents above Museum admission.) Appearing on the Planetarium dome's night sky are such characters as the North Star Fairy, Blue Bluster, Old Man Moon, and Longtailed Bear as well as Santa and his elves.

Their adventures among the stars are also presented at 4 p.m. December 9-10, 16-17, and 23-24.

In addition, Holiday Night features the opening of Someone Like Me, an exhibit about children's lives in Third World Countries; a visit by Santa Claus (6:30 — 8:30); live animals to watch and touch; activities in the Discovery Room; choral singing; and animation films.

The Planetarium program, "The Christmas Star," for older children and adults, will be given that evening at 7:30.

Running through January 2, this program is shown Tuesday-Saturday at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.; Sunday, at 12, 2, and 3 p.m.; also Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m.

"The Christmas Star" relates the origin of many holiday customs to astronomical events of the season. The winter solstice, when the sun arrives at its lowest point in the sky was the chief event to which ancient people reacted. Many of their propitiative practices have come down to us in such forms as the burning of Yule logs and the lighting of candles.

The program also considers the Star of Bethlehem, showing comets, planets in conjunction, and other phenomena that have been advanced as possible explanations of it.

The sky of 2,000 years ago contrasts with the final depiction, a snowfall over a traditional New England village bathed in carol music.

Museum admission is $5 for adults; $4 for students with ID; and $3 for ages 5-16, and 65 and over. Friday, from 5-10 p.m., admission is half price for each category. Admission is charged Wednesday afternoon during school vacation week.

Community Diabetic schedule

The Education Department of Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., will conduct the last Community Diabetic Program of 1983 on Wednesday, December 14, from 8:00 to 9:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Symmes Hospital Division in Arlington.

The topic, "Complications of Diabetes, Sexual Implications, Causes and Cures," will be presented by Richard Levine, M.D. Dr. Levine, a urologist, is a member of the Active Medical Staff at Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., and is Chief of Urology at Cambridge Hospital.

Dr. Levine, an instructor at Harvard Medical School, will lecture on the involvement of diabetes in issues relating to sexuality, possible causes, and methods of treatment. The lecture, which will include a question and answer period, will prove beneficial to anyone who wants to gain a greater understanding of diabetes, and its treatment.

Additional information may be obtained from the Choate-Symmes Education Department, 646-1500, Extension 397.

Once a tidal estuary, Back Bay was landfilled in the 1800s. Pilings must be driven down to bedrock before anything can be built here. Early buildings rest atop wooden pilings that, as long as they remain in contact with wet soil, should remain solid. But in some cases a lowered water table under the neighborhood has allowed air to reach the pilings, causing rot. Parts of some historically important buildings have cracked or sunk.

Constant monitoring of the water table now is standard procedure in new developments. When too much water is displaced by new construction, more must be pumped back onto the affected site.

Gordon Hyslop, manager of development for the Chicago-based Urban Investment & Development Company, the driving force behind Copley Place, says that the land itself was basically worthless. "We had to create a whole new piece of real estate that was buildable," he adds. "Just putting in foundations was a nightmare."

Every time a new piling was driven, Mr. Hyslop says, the one beside it would "bounce."

There are some who also worry about the extra burden that new construction may be placing on the city's aging water-delivery and sewer systems. And the neighborhood has experienced some significant electrical blackouts in recent years.

Other concerns: maintaining compatibility with the current mix of building sizes and architectural styles.

Two decades ago, no building in the city was more than 26 stories high. Now, the John Hancock and Prudential towers are both well in excess of 50 stories. The two hotels in Copley Place — Marriott and Westin — are 39 and 36 stories, respectively. The Marriott will be the tallest hotel in Boston.

Still another major project is the expansion of Hynes Auditorium, the city's principal — but undersized — convention facility. In keeping with the city's bid to become a major convention center, plans call for the floor space of "the Hynes" to be more than doubled by adding an extra story and by building out over what is now a frontal access road.

Boylston Street 'has always been very unspecial,' but now 'it's really going to come into its own,' says Kevin Cartwright of the Back Bay Association

And there's more. New England Life Insurance Company wants to put up a $200 million office complex with twin 23-story towers. Another parcel, known as Hadassah Way, is the subject of development proposals for mixed housing and commercial use.

The New England Life proposal, particularly, is a matter of raging controversy.

"The sheer bulk . . . is out of proportion with the business and residential neighborhood and would dominate the area to an unacceptable degree," a neighborhood citizens advisory committee complained in a report to the city last August. It cited such potentially deleterious effects as increased traffic, additional shadows over a significant area, added pressure on parking, and the unwillingness to face "another five years of construction."

But for all those who fear a possible Manhattan-izing of the Back Bay, there are others who are just as convinced that it will never happen.

One is John King, editor of the Boston Ledger, a free-circulation weekly that focuses on Back Bay.

"I don't buy it," he says. "I think that most of the concerns of the neighborhood group are valid, but overstated. I don't think the development that is taking place now is going to drastically affect Back Bay."

Adds Kevin Cartwright, executive director of the Back Bay Association, which represents 250 commercial establishments in the neighborhood: "The view of my organization is that those developments are only strengthening the Back Bay. They're going to make this area only that much more viable."

Boylston Street, Ms. Cartwright adds, "has always been very unspecial," but now "it's really going to come into its own."

Mitchell Fishman, senior project coordinator for the Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA), speaks of "the tight lid that we try to keep on the Back Bay."

The projects approved by the BRA in the past three or four years, he says, "show a particular amount of restraint. The developers also are sensitive."

With a few minor exceptions, Mr. Fishman says, the BRA supports the Back Bay Federation's goals and guidelines for development and has said so in writing.

Besides, he adds, the neighborhood "doesn't have what I'd say are any more 'soft' areas left" that could easily lend themselves to redevelopment.

As for Copley Place, it's hard to quarrel with new development after a stroll through the Westin Hotel. The gleaming glass pedestrian entrance, pungent fragrance of hundreds of potted marigolds, and muted roar of its indoor waterfall play on the senses. And that's before arriving at the mezzanine lobby, which features plush furnishings, custom-designed carpeting imported from England, Italian marble, and elegant brass columns.

Open since August, it is doing a brisk business and has convention bookings as far in advance as 1995. Westin wanted to build alone on the site — a former interchange on the Massachusetts Turnpike — 10 years ago. But it settled for a place in the $500 million project.

Elliott Laffer himself says it's better to have Copley Place than not have it. And he expects to be present at the ribbon-cutting next February.

"To me," he says, "open space is a park, not a highway. Rubble-strewn vacant lots are open space; too."

A fun social event where you provide the wine, mingle with old friends and meet new ones — we provide the rest. Admission is $6 for members, $10 non-members. For reservations or for a complimentary bulletin listing other activities, please call 527-4478 or write P.O. Box 245, Chestnut Hill, Mass. 02167.

OFFICE INFORMATION PROCESSING PROGRAM

President Roger A. Van Winkle of Massachusetts Bay Community College announced that applications are being accepted for a special 15-week training program, "Office Information Processing." This low tuition program will be offered during the day and will begin on January 23.

According to President Van Winkle, "the objective of the program is to prepare students for entry-level office jobs, and it is being offered in response to Massachusetts' critical need for skilled office personnel." Courses include typewriting, word processing concepts and communications, and accounting procedures. Students also attend classes on career options and job-search techniques and receive individual counseling and placement assistance upon completion of the program.

To be eligible applicants must be unemployed adults and have a high school diploma or equivalent. No previous typewriting skills are necessary.

Classes will be held on the College campus at 50 Oakland Street, Wellesley Hills, near the junction of Routes 9 and 128. For additional information visit or call the Office of Admissions at 237-1100, extension 180.

SKI & SPORTS

"Happier Holiday", a dance party for the holidays with Boston Ski & Sports Club members, guests and newcomers, December 16th at the Travelodge, 1200 Beacon St., Brookline. Dance in a warm, welcoming atmosphere to the live music of "One 28". Tickets are $8.00 for non-members, but join BSSC that night and be our guest.

GIFT OF FRIENDSHIP

Give the gift of friendship this holiday season. Get together with someone who might otherwise be alone. Get involved in local activities and celebrations. Find out what's going on in your community and how you can help. Be there for your friends and family — take the time to listen to what they have to say. Friendship. One precious gift you can afford to give. A holiday wish from the prevention centers. For more information call: 777-2664.

WOMEN'S RUNNING CLUB

Fast women, the first running club for women in the Merrimack Valley and surrounding communities will hold their next meeting on Tuesday, December 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the Andover-North Andover YMCA on Haverhill Street in North Andover.

This month's guest speaker is Marcy Schwam, one of the top Ultra Marathoners in the world.

The meeting should prove to be quite interesting as March will speak on her training methods and what it was like to finish first in a 50 mile run. Marcy started her running program as a means of keeping in shape for tennis. Some of Marcy's accomplishments after that day are: winning the women's division in the First race up the stairs of the Empire State Building, Racing up Pike's Peak, winning ultra marathon runs, and setting the American Women's Road Record for 100 dm and the world record of 48

CAMBRIDGE FORUM

Lewis Hyde, author of The Gift: Imagination and the Erotic Life of Property, will speak on his belief that art is best described as a gift, not as a commodity. Mr. Hyde has earned a M.A. in Comparative Literature from the University of Iowa, and a B.A. in Sociology from the University of Minnesota. He has also conducted extensive research under grants from the National Endowment for the Arts. He will speak on Wednesday, December 14th at 8:00 p.m. at the Cambridge Forum, 3 Church Street, Harvard Square. Free admission.

HAMMOND CASTLE

Relive the gaiety of a Medieval Christmas at Hammond Castle Museum in Gloucester on Sunday, December 11th from 1 to 4 P.M. Ladies, knights, jesters, oafs and churls will be on hand to help Museum visitors celebrate the Yuletide season.

The Great Hall of the castle will be festooned with a plethora of garlands and greenery much as it would have been in medieval times. Evergreens were used to bedeck halls as their leaves last throughout winter, and were thought to symbolize the hope of spring's return. Indeed, after the winter solstice, the celebration of Christ's birth was mingled with the older tradition of celebrating the gradual lengthening of days and the rebirth of nature.

The mammoth fireplace in the Great Hall, imported intact from a fifteenth century French chateau, will be ablaze. A Yule Log Lighting Ceremony will be celebrated periodically throughout the afternoon.

The sounds of a Medieval Christmas will echo through Castle chambers as musicians perform madrigals and old French and English carols. Other highlights will include a Boar's Head Procession and performance of skits by the Castle Travelling Troupe.

Visitors will be able to slake their thirst with a traditional cup of Wassail, served piping hot. Medieval delicacies will be available at a small charge. Children will be able to test their prowess at such games as William Tell, the Quintain, Bee in the Middle, and Pin the Tail on the Dragon.

The day will culminate in an outdoor Tree Lighting Ceremony and Carol Sing at 4 P.M. Admission is $4.00 for adults and $2.00 for children. For additional information and reservations, please call 283-7673.

POPS CONCERT

A special offering from the Melrose Symphony Orchestra this year will be its Family Christmas Pops Concert scheduled for the afternoon of Sunday, December 11th at 3:00 p.m. Unlike the other Concerts presented this year, the afternoon starting time allows families with small children to easily attend, while offering a convenient hour of the day to those who do not feel comfortable with night time activities. The Concert, held at Melrose Memorial Hall, 590 Main Street, Melrose, will be set up in Pops style, that is with tables large and small, and will feature treats to be served at your table by the "Friends" of the Symphony, a helpful arm of the Symphony's Board of Directors.

The program presented will offer some wonderful seasonal music, some familiar and some unfamiliar, but completely refreshing in nature. Musical selections will include: "The Princess and the Thief", "Landmark Suite", by Conductor Peter Hazzard, "The Night Before Christmas" narrated by local Physician, Dr. Robert Soule, "Sleigh Ride" and a variety of sing-a-long Christmas melodies.

Tickets for this Concert are available at Hill's Stationary Supply on Main Street, Ann and Mae's Deli in the Wyoming area and at the Box Office at Memorial Hall at Concert Time. Information regarding the Concert can be obtained by calling 665-6159. Table reservations now being accepted.

CLASSICAL MUSIC CONCERT

A "Recital for Violin and Piano" will be held Friday, December 9 at 8:30 p.m. in Brandeis University's Slosberg Recital Hall. Judith Eissenberg, violin, Craig Smith, piano, and Rhonda Rider, violoncello, will perform "Suite Italienne," Igor Stravinsky; "Second Sonata," Charles Ives; "Concert of Ensembles for Violin and Violoncello," Conrad Pope; and "Sonata," Claude Debussy. Admission is free. For information call 647-2562.

CONSTRUCTION MANAGEMENT

Two new construction management courses will be offered in Wentworth Institute of Technology's Weekend College starting Saturday, January 7.

The two courses are "Construction Management Theory" and "Construction Cost Analysis." Registration for the two courses will be held on Thursday evening, January 5, from 5:30 p.m.

Construction project management from conception to completion will be covered in the "Construction Management Theory" course. Included will be preparing feasibility studies, site selection, planning, programming, design coordination, and contracting procedures. Emphasis in this course is placed on contractor operations, project administration, job planning, and subcontract coordination.

Prof. Frederick Gould, who has a M.S. in Construction Engineering & Project Management from M.I.T. and was Construction Project Engineer for the West Coast Space Shuttle Launch Facility, will teach the course.

Classes will be held on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon. The course will also be offered on Tuesday evenings from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. including a light dinner.

The "Construction Cost Analysis" course, which will be conducted on Saturdays from 1 to 5 p.m., covers practical procedures for building construction, estimating of major trades, analysis of preliminary budgets and complete working estimates, and computer applications. This course will be taught by a member of Wentworth's College of Design & Construction faculty.

Further information about the two courses may be obtained from Dean John Kaczorowski, Jr., Division of External Programs, Wentworth Institute of Technology, 550 Huntington Ave., Boston, Ma. 02115, or phone (617) 442-9010.

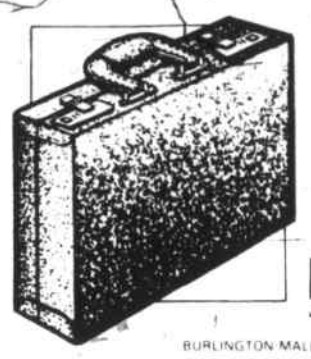

JAZZ FEST

Berklee College of Music will host high school stage bands from throughout the U.S. and Canada as they perform and compete for trophies and scholarships amounting to $15,000 in the College's 16th Annual Jazz Ensemble Festival on Saturday, March 10.

Since its inception the Festival has provided a spirited showcase and an invaluable educational experience for more than 20,000 student musicians and music educators. Three classes of competition provide a forum for participating schools encompassing all levels of size and experience, and ensembles are welcome to perform on a non-competitive basis as well. In addition to the high school big band category, Festival 1984 has been expanded to include a small group category to display the talents of those top smaller ensembles. A full compliment of instrumental clinics, specialized workshops and concert demonstrations open to all will be conducted by members of Berklee's internationally renowned faculty, utilizing the College's professionally equipped Recording Studio, Synthesizer Lab and Film Sound Studio.

Registration should be made by December 20 and additional information is available from: Norman Silver, Festival 1984, Berklee College of Music, 1140 Boylston Street, Boston, Ma. 02215.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Ginnie Purrington of Wakefield is proud of her son Steve who works for UPS. He's courteous, industrious and friendly. He may go to Vegas for a well-earned vacation. I hope he does better than my cousin Frank Mazzoni from Wilmington who went to Las Vegas in a $20,000 Cadillac and came back on a $100,000 dollar bus.

Frank rolled the dice and one fell out of his sleeve. The cool-cat coupier picked them up, kept one and gave two back to Frank saying, "Shoot Sir, your point is fourteen." It cost him $50 to see Liberace's show — a few piano chords — a couple of songs and 32 teeth — no wonder Lee is always smiling.

I always thought that Lynnfield was an exclusive community reserved for doctors, lawyers and Indian Chiefs — but my cousin Harry Vigilante, who is an executive with a national carpet company, lives there. He is like many Lynnfield residents, rugged, durable and colorful.

As I said before, I'm happy to have worked with a crew of college students in the late '40's building sidewalks in Lynnfield for the State. I remember a few of us attending Our Lady's Church on Route 1 and especially remember Mrs. Agnes Cassidy, Choirmaster and Organist, telling me that with my singing voice I could be used only in case of a fire.

I have only pleasant memories of Lynnfield and the many wonderful people I met working one summer, as one resident said, "building sidewalks for the bluebirds to walk on." Many readers I am sure are wondering where all these uncles, aunts and cousins who I mention from time to time are coming from? Well, I'll explain one more time. My mother was one of ten children (that's the Irish side of my family) and my father was one of eleven. They were born in Sardinia and all came here and settled in and around Woburn, and there's nothing "fishy" about that.

So I have literally hundreds of cousins but only one Aunt Maria and Uncle John Shea. When we get together for a wedding or festive occasion, we look, sound and act like a session of the General Assembly of the League of Nations.

And like that august body, we have our fair share of name calling, hand gestures and minifeuds. Last week at a wedding reception Aunt Maria brought a copy of "Woodchips" for those relatives who don't live in this area to read, saying "We all know that Woodchipper is "Nuts," but does he have to tell the world?"

Uncle John asked a nephew how his Aunt Matilda was? "Oh," Kevin answered "she died last year." "Why wasn't I informed?" asked John. "Because she didn't bother to call anyone when she died." My wife said she dreamed last night that I bought her a beautiful mink coat. "Good," I responded "in your next dream wear it in good health."

Everything on Noah's Ark came in pairs except worms — they came in apples.

Rowan Fitzgerald, my Uncle John's personal friend and neighbor from North Reading, is a painter. He had the habit of adding a lot of water to the latex paint so that he could cover more area and naturally save on the cost of the paint. One night in a dream a voice whispered in Rowan's ear, "Repaint you thinner — repaint."

She was only a "Stableman's" daughter but all of the "Horsemen knew her." Joe Louis, one of the greatest boxers who ever entered a ring, was asked, "Joe, in all the years and hundreds of fights who would you say "hit" you the hardest?" Joe was slow of speech but didn't hesitate a second saying, "The I.R.S."

O.K. kids, here's one I promised you — Think of a number from 1 to 10; now double it; add 4; divide the total in half; subtract the first number you thought of; and your answer is 2.

Years ago a Japanese auto company asked a German advertising agency to come up with a name for a new car that was ready to roll off the assembly line in "two weeks." That was very little time to give, that's why the Japanese received a telegram from Germany inquiring, "Dat-Soon?" That's why the car you see everywhere is called "Datsun."

Robert Burns of Woburn told me that two silkworms were in a race and they both ended up in a "tie" and he was wearing it. It's no wonder Bob looked sharp, he was also wearing an "Arrow shirt."

My cousins didn't last very long in business — all because of a stupid sign over a combination gas station and roadside diner that said, "EAT HERE AND GET GAS."

Folks, do any of you do what my wife and I "used" to do? Send Christmas cards then wait to get one back and if we didn't, that person was off our list. Well, we don't do that anymore, we send cards because we want to, not because we expect one in return.

In my 19 years with the Navy, I was on as many naval vessels as there are letters in the alphabet. Starting with the icebreaker Atka to the Yosemite, a destroyer tender. What is worse than raining "cats and dogs?" — "Hailing taxi-cabs."

In a true ecumenical spirit, three clergymen would meet each Wednesday for lunch. One day the inevitable subject of money was discussed. "I take all the money from the weekly collection," said the first, "bring it to my office where a circle is painted on the floor. I toss the money in the air and whatever falls in the circle stays for salaries, repairs and supplies, all the money outside the circle goes to charity." "I do the same," said the second clergyman "except instead of a circle I have a line on the floor — one side goes to charity, the other side stays." "I have not a circle or line," said the third, "I throw all the money in the air, whatever stays 'up' goes to charity."

Dan Holland of Winchester told his wife Mae, "I found a great job dear — free insurance, good salary and coffee breaks." "That's wonderful," said Mae. "I knew you'd be pleased," said Dan, "You start Monday."

Fraternities make a comeback

Fraternities and sororities are making a come back and will "boom" in the next five years on college campuses as students - confused by the "do your own thing" philosophy of the late 60s — seek the structured socializing of clubs, college sports events, R.O.T.C., and the junior prom.

This is the conclusion of two Northeastern University researchers who examined data on 161 schools across the country and charted the dramatic decline and gradual rejuvenation of fraternities and sororities during the last three decades. More than half of the schools surveyed reported new interest in these organizations.

Jack Levin, professor of sociology, and James Fox, professor of criminal justice, said, interest in fraternities is strongest in old, rural, private, medium-sized Southern schools where the academic standards are high and the student body is predominantly men from out of state.

"Fraternities that enjoyed great popularity in the 1950$ became literally an embarrassment in the late 60s and early 70s when the Woodstock generation preached the values of freedom and frats represented the establishment," Levin said. "But today, college kids are coming back to fraternities as an organized way of interacting."

"These organizations are part of the well-intrenched Southern college tradition

ADA sponsors Burlington fashion show

A very successful fashion show was held at Jordan Marsh at the Burlington Mall on Thursday evening, October 27. Under the glittering lights of the third floor Garnishes Restaurant, over 250 people gathered to support the fifth annual show sponsored by the Mystic Valley chapter of the American Diabetes Association.

A beautiful table was set with flowers and lovely china. Hors d'oeuvres, including all types of cheese, crackers, and fresh fruit, were plentiful. Wine and mixed drinks were also available as the guests arrived.

At seven o'clock, the fashion show began. A perfect blend of music and lighting complimented the splendid outfits which were shown. Striking mixtures of red and black were coordinated in dress, suit, and pant outfits. Gorgeous furs of all colors and lengths were also previewed. Jan Holmes of Channel 5's Sunday Open House added to the festivities as she modelled a sparkling silver and blue two-piece evening dress.

Immediately following the show, Mr. E.J. Stone, president and cheif executive officer of Jordan Marsh, appeared on stage to express his continued support of the ADA. Jan Holmes then spoke about diabetes, its complications and treatment. She introduced Mary Starr, chairperson of the show and president of the Mystic Valley Chapter, who also thanked her committee and all who were present for their support. Kathleen Curley, acting executive director of the ADA was present to thank Jordan Marsh for their fine efforts on behalf of the American Diabetes Association.

John Starr, of Jordan Marsh and son of Mary Starr, then presented special recognition plaques to Mr. E.J. Stone, and J.D. Hathaway, manager of the Burlington Store. A plaque was also presented to Mr. Lenny Colanagelo for his generous donation of printing the invitations for the show. His wife accepted the award in his absence.

With the help of Jan Holmes, John Starr chose the raffle winners of several lovely gifts donated by area merchants and Jordan Marsh. Delicious desserts and coffee were served at the end of the presentations. As guests departed, fragrance samples were distributed by Jordan Marsh representatives.

The fashion show was coordinated by the Jordan Marsh special events staff, Mary Starr, the Mystic Valley Chapter volunteers, and John Starr of Jordan Marsh.

WBZ 'Theft Patrol' program announced

WBZ Radio has added a new dimension to its existing "Theft Patrol" program, it was announce today by Vice President and General Manager Bill Hartman.

In an unprecedented move by the Boston Police Department, a special unit assigned to WBZ Radio will begin today in an effort to strengthen the existing "Theft Patrol" program on Maynard in the Morning. Officer John Nolan of the Boston Police will fly in the WBZ helicopter during morning and afternoon traffic reporting periods. Officer Nolan has a Priority One status and will be able to offer WBZ Radio instant response to reports of stolen cars.

In the fall of 1980, WBZ Radio began "Theft Patrol". Each morning, Dave Maynard would receive from the Boston Police, the description of a car, stolen in Boston within the past several hours. He would announce the description on the air and ask listeners to call a special "Theft Patrol" hot line (254-1030) if they spotted the car or any car they thought might be stolen. If the car was recovered, the listener received from WBZ Radio a one year membership in the ALA Auto Club. WBZ Radio recovered more than 500 cars over the past couple of years, however, with a Priority Four status, the property damage to the cars eventually recovered was extensive.

In an effort to create as much public awareness of the problem as possible, WBZ Radio will, in addition to regular traffic reports, have Officer Nolan provide a special "Theft Patrol" report each morning and afternoon at 8:14 A.M. and 5:14 P.M.

"What makes this such a substantial change for us," related Mr. Hartman, "is that now, with Officer Nolan in the helicopter, with a police radio in one hand and a WBZ Radio in the other, our chances of decreasing property damage and recovering stolen cars is so much greater."

"The commitment on the part of the Police Department is nothing short of commendable," continued Hartman. "Not only have they set up this special unit, but they have painted a squad car with the "Theft Patrol" insignia so that when Officer Nolan isn't flying, he's on the ground in a squad car equipped with a WBZ Radio."

"In our minds, the Police Department commitment is a deep one and the citizens of Boston should be proud of this effort," remarked Mr. Hartman.

Board members sought for EMMHA

The Eastern Middlesex Mental Health Association (EMMHA) is looking for Board Members from Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield.

EMMHA provides low cost mental health services for adults, children and families. Members of the Board enable their communities to have a voice in the choices effecting the continuation of locally based quality programs. With state and local funding sources constantly changing it is imperative that EMMHA maintain a strong community based Board to assure residents the opportunity to receive inexpensive mental health services.

Interested adults are invited to attend any of the monthly meetings held every third Monday at 7:30 p.m., EMMHA, 7 Lincoln Street, Wakefield, 246-2010.

QUICK QUIZ

Test Your Knowledge Of Acid Rain

Acid rain is one of the major environmental issues of the Eighties. Do you have all the facts straight about its effects?

1. All rain is basically (a) acidic (b) alkaline (c) neutral?

2. The precursors of acid rain come only from industrial smokestacks. (a) True (b) False

3. Acidity has had many adverse impacts on the environment over the last few years. (a) True (b) False

4. Available evidence is not consistent with the charge that rain is becoming increasingly acidic. (a) True (b) False

ANSWERS: 1. (a) Normal acidities for rain cover a fairly broad range. 2. (b) False. The precursor of acid rain, sulfur dioxide (SO_2) and oxides of nitrogen (NO_2) come partly from such sources as private homes, automobiles and factories. 3. b. Claims that acid rain is damaging agricultural or forestry productivity are unsubstantiated, as are claims of reduced fish populations in areas such as the Adirondack lakes. 4. a.

A new business opens in Medford

MEDFORD — "Personalized service."

Those are the two words one hears most often when talking with Joseph Pasquale about his new business, Mystic Valley Sales, 180 Main St.

Pasquale opened the doors of his store a little over a month ago, but he's no newcomer to the appliance business, the Main Street location, or the Medford area consumer.

For 33 years, the long-time local resident was affiliated in business with General Plumbing and Heating.

He recently bought out the appliance end of the business and now he's on his own.

"We've got more stock. We've increased the lines a little and intend to increase them more down the road," Pasquale says as he explains some of the changes he has made since embarking upon his solo venture.

Looking out over his bright, well-stocked showroom with its rows of appliances, televisions, and video tape recorders, Pasquale lists the various lines that he has in stock, including General Electric, Maytag, Tappan, RCA, Wellbuilt, and Premier. Both electric and gas model appliances are available.

Deliveries and installations, he noted, can be arranged, and major credit cards are accepted. In fact, he says, General Electric currently is extending a special credit offer, under which a purchaser's first payment is not due until Feb. 1, 1984, and, if he chooses to pay the whole thing at that time, there is no interest charge at all.

"We stress the personalized touch," Pasquale says, adding that he believes consumers welcome having "someone to talk to, to help them and guide them" rather than being treated as a number on an order form.

While Mystic Valley Sales is small enough to offer the personal touch, Pasquale continues, it is also large enough to satisfy today's price-conscious shoppers. "Our volume buying reflects in competitive pricing," he notes.

Mystic Valley Sales, which may be found under a distinctive blue and gold hand-carved sign, is open Mondays through Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Fridays from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Pasquale is looking forward to continuing to serve the area familes to whom he has provided appliances during the past 33 years and to adding new families to that list.

Among the families rooting for the success of his new venture is his own. It includes wife Joan and sons Gene, a government securities broker in Boston, Gregg, a second-year student at Boston College Law School, and Gary, a senior at Malden Catholic High School.

"A Day in the Life" - a disaster

REVIEW

By DAN KENNEDY

For anyone who grew up on the Beatles in the 1960s, the music of John Lennon and Paul McCartney was more than mere entertainment. Their music — along with that of Bob Dylan and the Rolling Stones — shaped a generation. Sure Lennon and McCartney were taken too seriously — wasn't everything back then? — but even today, nearly 20 years later, their songs continue to ring with a freshness and integrity that is undiminished by the passage of time.

The Beatles produced music that still matters to many of us, and their songs are not to be trifled with. "A Day In the Life," the most complex and mysterious song they ever recorded, for example, would be a disaster if anyone tried to do something foolish like perform it as a funk-disco number. And could you imagine "Revolution" done as a song-and-dance piece, complete with leg kicks and sappy smiling faces? You wouldn't know whether to laugh or cry, right?

Well get this: You can see exactly what I've described above, as well as other atrocities, at the Bradford Hotel's Cabaret Theatre in Boston, where a new musical, "A Day In the Life," is being performed.

Director Walter Kozicki, who is also credited with "conceiving" the show, must hate rock and roll. His taste seems to show that he is one of those Lennon-McCartney admirers who see them as logical successors to George Gershwin, Irving Berlin and Cole Porter It's difficult to imagine a more wrong-headed approach. The Beatles played rock and roll. Their precursors were Elvis Presley, Chuck Berry and Buddy Holly. Any attempt to gloss their music over with show-biz glitziness is bound to end in failure.

But let me share with you what you might see and hear should you happen to wander into the Cabaret Theatre by mistake some night. You will see the meagerly talented Robin Taylor perform "Come Together" as a bump-and-grind. You will see "Maxwell's Silver Hammer," a silly song which was redeemed by the Beatles' mock-seriousness, turned into something far sillier. You will see "With a Little Help From My Friends" sung — poorly — as some sort of Lambert, Hendricks and Ross jazz piece. You will see — I'm not kidding — "Norwegian Wood" sung by Taylor as a lesbian love pean.

There are a few moments which can't be described as high spots, but which are less painful than what I have already described. James J. Mellon's vice is too stagy, but he does an acceptable job with "Yesterday." Patrick Hamilton is even stagier than Mellon, but he sings "The Long and Winding Road" with great gusto. "Here, There and Everywhere," sung by Hamilton and Taylor, was nearly a triumph until drummer Sipho Kunene completely lost the beat, leaving the singers and the band stranded. "Oh! Darling," done as a doo-wop '50s number by Mellon and Kathleen Mahony Bennett, has its moments.

But most of this stuff is the pits, the worst, worse than almost anything I have ever seen. "I Call Your Name," sung by Bennett, "Lady Madonna," by the entire cast, "All My Lovin'," by Bennett — I could go on, but I think you get the picture — are just plain awful beyond immediate comment.

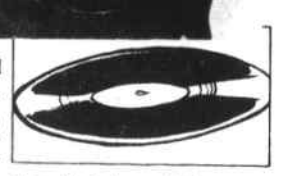

"A Day In the Life" is so hopelessly misconceived, it would be easy to excuse the cast. But they are not entirely blameless. Hamilton is the only one of the four who could be described as personable, and he and Mellon are the only ones who can sing — that is, if you like Lennon-McCartney sounding more

Broadway than Liverpool. Taylor is a mediocre singer, but at least she conducts herself as a professional. Bennett is something else altogether — a singer with a horrendous voice, a sex object with no sex appeal and a dancer with two left feet. Get her out of there.

The only members of the show who conduct themselves with complete competence and professionalism are the band. Despite Kunene's one rough spot, the musicians acquitted themselves well — far better than any of the singers.

Tickets for "A Day In the Life" range from $13.50 to $19.50. I can't imagine voluntarily sitting through it even if it were free. Stay far, far away.

The first long-playing records were produced by the Neophone Co. of Finsbury Square, London, from 1904 to 1906, and consisted of 20 in. discs with a playing time of up to 12 minutes.

Don't forget safety for Christmas

Christmas is the season for giving gifts to family and friends, baking special treats, sitting in front of a crackling fire and decorating a tree with brightly colored strings of light.

Unfortunately, Christmas also is a time for fires, many of which can be traced back to Christmas trees and decorations.

Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. (UL) is an independent, not-for-profit organization that tests products, such as indoor and outdoor Christmas tree lights, artificial trees and electrical decorations for a variety of safety features.

"During the busy holiday season, people sometimes forget safety rules. Many fires are caused by damaged light strings, overloaded electrical circuits and improper use of decorations. At UL, we test products for foreseeable electrical and fire hazards, but consumers have to do their part too," says Robert Seelbach, UL's Vice President and chief electrical engineer.

Seelbach says consumers can avoid fires if they use simple precautions.

"Sparks or hot wires can ignite a dried out tree very quickly. Check each string of lights for breaks in the wiring, frayed insulation, broken bulbs or receptacles and defective plugs. If you find something wrong with the string, don't use it. Replace it with a new string."

Overloading a circuit with too many lights also can cause a fire. "Always read the manufacturer's instructions and don't use more than the recommended number of lights on one circuit," Seelbach says.

UL engineers have compiled a "Christmas Safety Checklist" to remind consumers of safety precautions. Seelbach suggests that consumers use the checklist to improve holiday safety.

The checklist covers information on decorating the house, artificial and real trees, selecting toys for small children and other safety tips. The checklist is especially helpful in teaching children the importance of safety. It features Santa and his Elves and is in poster form.

Single copies of the checklist are available free by writing to: Underwriters Laboratories, 333 Pfingsten Road, Northbrook, Il. 60062, Attn: Public Information Dept.

In Salt Lake City a monument was erected in memory of sea gulls who came in large flocks and destroyed millions of black crickets that in 1848 threatened crops.

Geographic Facts

The term "acid rain" was first coined more than 100 years ago by a British chemist, Robert Angus Smith, says the National Wildlife Federation. In 1852, Smith observed that as skies over Manchester became increasingly dirty, the rain became increasingly acidic. It wasn't until the mid-1960's however, that acid rain became a focus of scientific study around the world.

Considering each city resident breathes in 420 cubic feet of air every day, hardy, smog-resistant trees, like dogwood and Norway maple, that absorb polluted air and give off clean air, have quite a useful virtue, says National Wildlife magazine.

swing. He plays the tapes back in slow motion to study his swing and to see exactly where he can improve it."

Steve told me that the video boom is coming in handy for companies too. "It's an excellent sales tool. Consulting firms are always calling to lease a videocassette recorder, so they can use it as a means of training sales people and a means by which new products can be shown to prospective customers."

When I went out to look at videocassette recorders, I had every intention in the world of buying one. However, Steve had convinced me that buying at this time is actually a bad investment. Here's the main reason why: the state-of-the-art technology is changing so rapidly that models which are popular today will likely be obsolete tomorrow.

"Models change about every eight months," he stated, "and with video equipment, servicing can be extremely expensive. When you lease, servicing is free. You can update to the latest technology any time you want. To invest, say, a thousand dollars in a console now is crazy. The technology is changing too fast."

Another advantage to leasing is no large initial investment is required. I was particularly attracted to this idea. A fifty dollar security fee, along with one month's rental fee is all that's needed to set your home up with a videocassette recorder. "The cost of monthly rental is incredibly low," Steve insisted. Expecting to have a bomb dropped on my head, I asked how low those "low" monthly fees are. I discovered that one can lease a videocassette recorder for as low as a dollar a day!

"For eighty-one forty-five a system can be in your house tomorrow," he said. That seemed pretty cheap, considering I was prepared to hear a salesperson tell me I'd have to shell out at least a thousand bucks to buy one.

The video cassette recorders and other video equipment available through leasing at Rediffusion are manufactured by the Mitsubishi company, which, judging by the information provided to me by Steve, seems to produce top quality products.

I learned that for about a dollar a day one can lease a videocassette recorder with four-head design; 5-motor, direct-drive operation; front-loading mechanism with electronic insertion and tape-loaded indicator; 11-function wireless remote control with power on-off, channel up-down, play, record, fast-forward and rewind, speed-search and pause; 105-channel cable-ready tuning with 14-position soft-touch tuning presets; 3-event, 14-day programmability with 30-minute battery back-up in case of power loss; 1-touch timer recording automatically records in 30-minute increments (up to 2 hours) at the single touch of a button; multifunction digital displays shows time-of-day, day-of-week, programmed start-stop times, elapsed time of 1-touch recording function and 4-digit numerical tape counter; fine edit; and auto-rewind. For another fifty-cents or so a day, you can rent a recorder that does even more than that! Also available are color consoles with remote and wide screen rear projection televisions. It is impossible to explain each function of every piece of equipment available in this column, so it is best to have somebody like Steve do it for you.

"Obviously we cater to our customers," he remarked, pointing to the library of films available on videocassettes. "We lease films for just a dollar a day too, when you lease. If you buy your videocassette recorder, you have to pay three dollars a day."

The savings there alone would pay the cost of leasing a videocassette recorder. "Eventually everybody is going to have a videocassette recorder in their home,' Steve added. "They'll be as common as televisions. Right now video is in its infancy. People are just beginning to enjoy the freedom and comfort of watching movies in their home when they want to, not when the movie theatres and networks want them to. Today's changing lifestyles make leasing one of these systems a must, especially if you want to keep up on what's happening in the entertainment and sports world."

And they do one heck of a job of keeping the kids quiet for the babysitter.

Electric heater buys

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

If you have a portable electric heater, you may be able to save a bit on heating costs this winter. For instance, a heater in the bedroom can warm you up in the morning without your needing to heat up the whole house. Or you might use one to keep you warm while you watch late-night TV — after you've turned down the thermostat.

However, Consumer Reports engineers point out there are different types of heaters. The model to choose depends on the type of heating you need.

Radiant heaters beam heat with reflectors. They heat you without heating the air around you. Convection heaters heat the air, which in turn heats you. Some convection models have a fan to help that flow of warm air.

There also are combination radiant/convection heaters which have both reflector and fan.

The engineers tested 38 heaters, including models of each type. Each unit was evaluated for its heat delivery, among other things.

The engineers judged the hybrid radiant/convection models, as a class, to be the best all-around choice. They were readily portable and easy to store. Along with these advantages, several models had combined whole-room heat distribution, good spot heating and the ability to keep room temperature stable. The engineers say the latter factor is important because the less the temperature changes in a room as a heater cycles on and off, the more comfortable you will be.

Both upright and baseboard-style heaters were tested. The engineers determined that the best of the radiant/convection upright models was the quiet-running Presto 07840, $72. However, it doesn't have a handle, so carrying this unit is a two-handed job.

If your household includes children, you might prefer the Markel 198TS, at $58. The engineers said its heating elements are better guarded against small fingers than Presto's.

Among baseboard radiant/convection models, the Edison 324055, at $57, would be worth considering. Its sealed elements make it worthwhile if you have children. But if kids are not a concern, the Markel 127T, $65, might be the better choice because it was judged to be slightly better at spot heating than the Edison.

Of the upright convection heaters tested, you might choose from the Arvin 30H80, $100, the Markel 57TN, $62, or the Edison 324029G, $71. They all have fans and are able to distribute heat quickly.

The best all-around choice among baseboard convection-only models was the Markel 484T, $70.

Upright, column-styled, radiant-only quartz heaters deliver fast, concentrated heat to you, but not to the surrounding air. They'd be the type to warm you in a garage, barn, or space that's too large to be heated successfully by other portable heaters. Among the three models tested, only the Presto 07875, $98, was rated acceptable by the engineers. The other two radiant-only models evaluated failed the engineers' fire hazard test.

Parents can enrich children's lives

With many schools cutting back on educational programs, parents and parents' groups are seeking educational supplements for their children.

Tapping America's Resources to Enrich Your Child's Life is the theme of the November issue of PTA Today, the magazine of the National PTA.

Parents should consider....museums.

For example, in "Reading Bones", a program at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, children examine skeletons of animals, construct dinosaur models, watch films, and discuss stories about life 60 to 100 million years ago — when dinosaurs roamed.

Many museums offer hands-on exhibits, tours, activities, courses, and materials that may be loaned to schools, too.

Parents should consider....America's cultural riches.

"Our nation is rich in the cultural heritages of its many people...," says PTA volunteer, Blanche Glimps, director of the Vance County Guild Development Center in Henderson, North Carolina. "If our educational system does not take into account the rich backgrounds of our people, it fails its students."

Glimps suggests that parents plan a cultural awareness program at their children's school by:

—Inviting families to dress in their native costumes, and describe their ethnic dishes;

—Planning a class or school picnic or potluck dinner (ask people to prepare ethnic dishes);

—Sponsoring a Cultural Heritage Award to be presented to children who best express their cultural heritage through any form of creative expression (arts, crafts, compositions, storytelling, music, dance).

Parents should consider....libraries.

Libraries are more than places for books. They offer a wide range of preschool and elementary school programs, says Kay Jones, children's librarian of Del Paso Heights in Sacramento, California.

Jones suggests parents look for library summer reading programs, holiday programs, book clubs, film programs and many other imaginative programs.

The November issue discusses other ways parents can enrich their children's lives, including:

—Select children's magazines that foster a child's special interests;

—Plan family experiences that help each member better appreciate the family unit;

—Redesign a school or local playground to incorporate more imaginative structures that encourage creative play;

—Have children participate in the PTA Reflections cultural arts project to encourage children's artistic development.

Copies of the November issue of PTA Today are available for $1.00 each by sending a check or money order (made payable to National PTA) to National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611 telephone (312) 787-0977.

Treble Chorus to perform at Phillips Academy

The entire Merrimack Valley community is invited to join the Treble Chorus of New England at their concert on Sunday evening, December 11 at 8:00 at Cochran Chapel, Phillips Academy, Andover. The Treble Chorus is a semi-professional choir composed of 64 musically-talented children from 10 area towns. The eight year old chorus (formerly the North Parrish Treble Chorus) is one of the very few mixed choruses in New England and has performed over 65 concerts with radio and television appearances. The Treble Chorus of New England is under the direction of its founder Marie Stultz.

The featured work is the well-loved "Ceremony of Carols" of Benjamin Britten. Folkwords of Elizabethan England are interwoven in this hauntingly beautiful celebration of the Christmas season. Soloists are Michelle Geoffrion of Reading, Valerie Forgione of Burlington and Judy Parsons of North Reading. In addition, the Treble Chorus will perform carols by the contemporary English composer David Willcocks, "We hurry with Tired Unfaltering Steps", a cantata by Bach, and works by Vivaldi. The children sing in five languages.

Tickets may be obtained from Thompsons in Andover, North Shore Printing in North Reading, at the door the evening of the performance or by calling 664-6855. The donation is $4 for adults and $2 for children and senior citizens. Music lovers won't want to miss this unique concert

IT'S A FACT!

The National Easter Seal Society is America's oldest non-profit agency providing direct treatment and rehabilitation services to nearly 750,000 disabled children and adults.

One of the largest corporate gifts ever given to Easter Seals is the $350,000 recently contributed by Glenbrook Laboratories and indirectly by people who've purchased Glenbrook products such as BAYER Aspirin, PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia, and STRI-DEX Medicated Pads for treatment of acne.

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

The North Shore Education Center announces a series of holiday specials on their low cost craft and educational materials during the month of December. The Center storefront, located in the offices of the State Department of Education's Northeast Regional Center at 219 North St., North Reading, features raw materials for craft and fine art projects.

Artists, youth group leaders, scouts, classroom teachers, church and temple groups, day care personnel and rehabilition leaders can find materials including: game pieces, paper products, game boards, dice, spinners, holiday wrapping, and fabrics of all descriptions.

The holiday specials began on December 1st and will be featured each Thursday throughout the month. All materials will be available at half price and a super special will be featured each week.

The North Shore Education Center is a non-profit organization supported entirely by membership fees and sale of items donated by area business and manufacturers. For more information, call 664-3344.

MUSIC:

Lonesome is a dry branch and high and lonesome is the sound of the Dry Branch Fire Squad, the Boston Bluegrass Union's December 11th concert presentation. Combining a deference to tradition with creative and entertaining humor, this five-member band puts on a treat of a show.

Hailing from Ohio, the Dry Branch Fire Squad strives to make each performance a tribute to the country folk and country culture which spawned the mountain music. Each show combines musical excellence with downright hilarity to produce a unique, enjoyable concert experience.

Appearing with Dry Branch Fire Squad will be Stoney Lonesome, a new grouping of local bluegrass veterans.

This event will take place at Paine Hall, Harvard University, on Sunday, December 11th at 7 PM. Tickets are available from the Boston Bluegrass Union, Sandy's Music or the Music Emporium, all in Cambridge. For further information, call 661-0214 or 461-1549.

The North Shore Center for the Performing Arts will sponsor a performance by jazz musician Dizzy Gillespie and his Big Band Orchestra, Saturday, December 17, 8 PM, Lynn City Hall Memorial Auditorium.

A portion of the proceeds will go to the AtlanticCare Health Foundation for Lynn and Union Hospitals. Tickets can be purchased through the AtlanticCare Health Foundation, Ticketron and Teletron Outlets, Out-of-Town Tickets in Cambridge, Ted Cole's Music Store in Salem, and the Causeway Ticket Agency in Lynn. For further information, call 598-5192.

From red seagulls to inexpensive crafts materials, from bluegrass to Dizzy, COMING ATTRACTIONS has something for everyone. But if you know of an event of interest to all that we have overlooked, write, care of this local newspaper, and tell us all about it. As we look hard for red seagulls, we'll look even harder for your material.

Visiting Nurse Association relocates office headquarters

The Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East has moved its office headquarters. The office is now located at the East School on Beacon Street in Stoneham.

This move to expanded quarters signifies the growth in both services and staff which Middlesex-East has experienced over the last decade. During this time and in order to keep pace with the home health needs of this community, Middlesex-East has assembled a professional staff of skilled nurses; physical, occupational and speech therapists; home health aides; and, nutritional and social work counselors.

Moreover, for those families in the community for whom the need was great but the resources were limited, special programs such as hospice, high-risk, and early intervention have been developed and implemented.

Undeniably, a large variety of factors including a shift in health care philosophy have combined to spur the demand for home health care and the concommitant growth of Middlesex-East. However, at Middlesex-East the driving force has always been the commitment of the staff to bring the best quality care to the patients it serves. The expansion of the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East has made the fulfillment of that commitment possible.

Agreement sought on Marion Street lot

Danny Gillis and the Wilmington Planning Board have agreed to agree. The big question of course, was the houselot for Maryann Delaney on Marion Street. The planning board last week refused to sign any plan for Maryann Delaney, and without a signed plan she could not get a building permit.

Gillis, Maryann, her mother, and her brother-in-law Thomas Southmayd met with the selectmen Monday night and were at the Tuesday meeting of the planning board. Also there, as interested spectators were Dick Cole of Marion Street and Ann Maloney.

There were several thoughts expressed almost as one. Carole Hamilton of the planning board explained that the Official Map, which had been voted out in the special town meeting was "the only defense of the planning board, agaisnt speculators. The town engineer too, pointed out that there would be "other developers." The town engineer's opinion was that if the planning board and Maryann could come to an agreement as to how to proceed, then Mr. Gillis should sponsor an article in the spring town meeting to again vote on the Marion Street question, this time to "take it off" the Official Map.

Gillis agreed that such a course could be taken, but Carole Hamilton again had a word to say. The lady wanted to see things in writing, and to have time to think things over "before we jump."

There will be no planning board meeting until January 5. At that time Gillis and the town engineer should have a suitable agreement ready for the planning board to consider.

Marion Street

A quiet wooded lane, Marion Street is the center of a long, hot controversy. Maryanne Delaney seeks to build a house, but has met with opposition. First the Board of Appeals said she would have to pave 1200 feet of road. She then went to a town meeting to have the road declared on the official map. Last week, the planning board refused to sign a lot plan for her house.

'Power of Tsarist proportions' wins detective case for town manager

The town manager and the selectmen have won a case brought by the chief of police over the appointment of detectives.

The decision, written by Associate Justice George Cashman of the Middlesex Superior Court, acknowledges power "of Tsarist proportions" on the part of the town manager. The judge also said that the chief of police has no statutory powers in the administration of the department, since the town has never accepted permissive legislation known as c.41, s.97 or 97A.

The case was initiated in September by Police Chief Bobby Stewart after Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski appointed John Ritchie and Daniel Ballou, Sr. as detectives. The position of detective is not covered by Civil Service, and Stewart maintained that it was a job assignment within his power.

The town manager's defense was the Town Manager Act, which serves as the town charter.

In his decision, Judge Cashman upheld the town manager's contention, while making some comments on the range of power of that position.

The last sentence of section 5 "would appear to give broad and sweeping powers of Tsarist proportions to the individual holding the title of Town Manager," Judge Cashman wrote. That sentence gives the manager power to assume the duties of any office he is authorized to fill by appointment.

The judge called the range of authority in section 12-12a, which outlines the powers and duties of the manager, "startling and awesome — sufficiently so as to make an individual who is hungry for power envious at its reach."

Chief Stewart has said he will probably appeal the case. He said that he did not feel that the court answered the issue of custom and usage.

Stewart had eliminated all specialists, including detectives, as a budgetary measure in 1981, to meet the limits of Prop. 2½. The men were returned to regular officers' duty, thus eliminating significant amounts of overtime formerly needed to staff the regular shifts. As time went on, he gradually reappointed specialists, often with the men who had previously held the positions. In the detective bureau, he appointed different men, Officers Michael Celata and Mark Jepson, instead of Ritchie and Ballou. Celata and Jepson have been on "temporary" assignment for nearly two years. Meanwhile, Ballou has been out on an extended sick leave, undergoing hip surgery. Ritchie has recently been an acting sergeant. When Stapczynski appointed them as detectives, it was provisional on their return to regular duty. Celata and Jepson are still working as detectives.

Judge Cashman brushed aside arguments of political consideration, brought because Ballou's son is the chairman of the board of selectmen.

Annual visit

Julie and Brian Abruzi had a chance to visit with Santa and Mrs. Claus Monday night at the Fourth of July Building, during the Wilmington Recreation Department's Santa's Workshop.

$7500 settlement in Jenkins-Rooney case

An out-of-court settlement was reached last week in a civil case between Richard Jenkins and Wilmington Police Sgt. James Rooney.

Jenkins, himself a former Wilmington police officer, had filed suit against Rooney, the town, and former police chief Paul J. Lynch, charging that Rooney had threatened him, falsely imprisoned him, and had "converted" $1200 while Jenkins was under protective custody on Feb. 14, 1979.

The cases against the town and the former chief of police were dismissed.

Jenkins' suit against Rooney was for $20,000. In negotiations, Jenkins' attorney first asked for $12,000. Under the settlement, Rooney must pay Jenkins $7500.

Members of the board of selectmen have discussed possibly having the town pay part of the settlement for Rooney.

In three days of testimony, Jenkins' attorney presented three witnesses, in addition to the plaintiff's testimony. After Jenkins' case was completed, the Justice John Sullivan informed the parties that if the jury found for Jenkins, he would be honor-bound to turn the case over to the district attorney for possible criminal prosecution.

Because the settlement was reached out of court, there is no finding against Rooney. Thus his career is not threatened. He has been on the Wilmington Police Department for 12 years. He was suspended from the department earlier this year for allowing breathalyzer results to be falsified on his shift.

And you thought Santa had it easy!

Santa Claus had a rough night Tuesday night.

"I waited in line 45 minutes to see Santa Claus," said Cherrie Moore. "And what's Heather do? Punched him in the eye!" Like many infants, 20-month old Heather just did not understand why she had to wait in line to sit in this man's lap.

"Samta", meanwhile, was scheduled for another location at 7:30, and he didn't get out of the Fourth of July Building until 8:45. Hundreds of people lined up outside the building, waiting in the rain.

Santa's Workshop is an activity run by the Wilmington Recreation Department, and in theory it is just for Wilmington residents. But there were a large number of people from out of town.

'Chemical People' task force meets

Parents, educators and police officials will meet on Thursday night at the West Intermediate School at 7 p.m. The "Chemical People" Task Force, organized last month to tackle the problems of drug and alcohol abuse by youngsters, will meet on an agenda of information exchange, organization planning and new member sign-up.

Bloodmobile next week

In order to meet the increased need for blood during the holiday season, the Regional Health Center in Wilmington will host a Red Cross bloodmobile in Wilmington on Wed., Dec. 21 from 2 to 7 p.m.

Americans require an estimated 12 million units (pints) of blood each year, 30 gallons of the prescious liquid every hour. In fact, 200 hospitals in Massachusetts and Maine utilize 1500 pints of blood daily in order ot meet patient needs. Furtunately, there are many who donate blood - but not enough to meet rising demands.

Donating blood this holiday season is a gift that will affect the lives of many people. Approximately 19 percent of the blood supply is used for the treatment of cancer. Patients who suffer from heart disease use 16 percent of the blood supply, and the treatment of gastrointestal tract disease accounts for another 16 percent. Other patients desperately needing blood include accident victims, hemophliacs, and those suffering from respiratory, lung, liver and kidney diseases.

Anyone who is 17 years of age or older, weighs at least 110 pounds, and is in good health is encouraged to become a donor. For an appointment, contact the Regional Health Center, 657-3910, ext. 567.

Christmas concert Friday evening

The 60-voice Mishawum Choral Society will sing in a Christmas concert on Friday evening at St. Thomas Church in Wilmington. The free concert begins at 8 p.m.

Local members of the choral group include Dick Dickinson of Middlesex Avenue, Fred and Ruth Arsenault of Columbia Street and Joe Pelletier of Glen Road. The director is Robert Hodgson.

CARD OF THANKS

During the wind storm of December 7, a tree fell through our roof. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the men from the Wimington Fire Department who responded to my call. Their professional manner, encouragement and hard labor restored the situation from a pending disaster.

Congratulations to Chief Wandell on his fine crew of men.

CLOCK TOCK

by THE CLOCKFOLK OF NEW ENGLAND
Wilmington

The rate at which a clock ticks is in relation to the speed at which the pendulum swings. The longer the pendulum, the slower the ticking; conversely, the shorter the pendulum the faster the ticking. A swinging pendulum imposes its own rate on the clock. It has, however, to be kept in motion by the clock. Transfering the power from the clock's power source, such as a mainspring, is done by a series of gears and a "Y"-shaped yoke called a verge.

This verge prevents the gears from turning rapidly and consequently the power releasing all at once. The verge connects to the pendulum where it now must rock back and forth when the pendulum is swinging. When the pendulum is started swinging, the verge will rock and slowly allow the gears to begin releasing their power. This is when the "tick-tock" takes place. It is the sound made by the release and arrest of the escape gear on the two verge arms as the verge rocks back and forth catching alternating teeth of the escape gear.

A small push is given from the escape gear to the verge just at the moment of release. These pushes keep the pendulum in motion. "Ticks" vary from "tocks" because alternate verge arms arrest the escape gear and different parts of the clock mechanism resonate. The sound of a tick lasts about 15/1000's of a second.

Christmas wish

According to the Mystic Valley Mental Health center Association, there are many people living in this community who have no family or friends to spend time with this Christmas. You can help make the holiday season more enjoyable for them with donations of Christmas decorations, artificial Christmas trees and suitable gifts for toddlers, young adults and adults.

The Christmas wish list includes toys, sports equipment, furniture, stocking stuffers, tickets to movies, plays, etc, records, tapes, tape players, drapes and curtains, gifts for girls age 16-18, gifts for adult men and women, or cash donations.

For information contact Marion Dante at 861-0890.

The Harnden Tradition — Part IV

Capt. John Harnden lived in 'Gowing house'

© Copyright 1983
by Capt. Larz Neilson

On the morning of August 3, 1958 the people of North Wilmington were treated to a spectacular blaze. The Wilmington Fire Department had set fire to an old farmhouse at the easterly end of High Street. It was across the street, on the old Andover Road, now called Woburn Street.

That farmhouse was directly in the way of the new Interstate 93, then being constructed. It had to be removed or burned. Burning was the easiest way. None of those who were somewhat aware of Wilmington's historical background on that day realized that this was the home which had probably housed Capt. John Harnden, of Concord and Bunker Hill fame. There was, consequently, no protest.

For those who cared about local history it had been for years the property of Herbert C. Barrows, he who owned and operated the North Wilmington Nurseries, on some 70 or 80 acres of land. He had bought the property in the early 1900s from Jacob Manning (or his estate). Jacob was familiarly called Jake, and he had a nursery in Reading of which he had been proud. The North Wilmington property was an adjunct to his business.

The Manning family lived in Wilmington for many years, since about 1820. Prior to that they lived in Tewksbury. The first Manning built a home in Billerica in 1695, which is now called the Manning Manse, a popular restaurant. Just when Jake bought the North Wilmington Nurseries, as it was later called is unknown. It seems to have been after 1880.

In 1880, the Rev. Daniel P. Noyes delivered his "Historical Addresses," on the occasion of the 150th anniversary of the town of Wilmington. Those addresses were later printed, by order of the town, a fact which seems to vouchsafe their historical authenticity. Unfortunately this is not entirely true.

Speaking of the building in question, the Rev. Mr. Noyes said "The house now in the hands of Samuel Gowing was built by Joseph Harnden, less than 100 years ago."

Mr. Noyes was an outstanding speaker. He had been pastor of the Congregational Church for only three years. He had not had the opportunity to really study the subject on which he spoke, back in 1880. There were several errors with respect to the house which was burned August 3, 1958.

"Less than 100 years ago," meant after 1780. Joseph Harnden was a soldier of the American Revolution. He died in the "Cambridge Lines" (seige of Boston) on Dec. 24, 1775. His gravestone is in the old cemetery, adjacent to the Congregational Church.

Joseph was one of four brothers who took part in the events of the American Revolution. They were sons of John and Mary (Jaquith) Harnden, Joseph born in 1736, John 1738, Joshua 1740 and Benjamin 1744. Their father was John, he who was, as a boy one hid behind Indian Rock during the Harnden Massacre.

There were many trees around the old home, planted over the years by Herb Barrows or Jake Manning. It was, as a consequence, hidden. A family named Lopaus lived in it for years, tenants of Mr. Barrows.

The night before the fire the writer, for the first time, was able to see the inside of that home. It had been stripped bare. Combustibles were lying about ready for the fire the next day.

The lumber in the walls and on the floor was pine. None of it less than 12 inches wide. Up in the attic was painted, on the walls, a date which was probably significant.

It was with black paint, crudely done. The date was 1762.

Someone, it seemed, had painted that date in that year.

Wilmington people who were historically minded had conducted a desultory, but fruitless search for a record of the home of John Harnden, after the Harnden Massacre. One was probably built, about 1706 or 1707. Of course every one knew where it was at that time. But no one bothered to write the information in any record that was preserved, either in Reading or Wilmington.

John had, for a short time, undoubtedly lived with his brother Benjamin, in the Richard Harnden house, on the top of the hill. Benjamin had married in 1691, Mary -- of Reading. There were five children, Elizabeth 1692, Hannah 1694, Benjamin 1696-7, and Richard and Samuel, twins, in 1699.

Elizabeth in 1715 married Levi Preston of Killington Connecticut. The couple then moved to that town. Hannah in 1713 married Stephen Wright of Woburn. The younger Benjamin lived with his parents until 1722, when he married Joanna Dale of Woburn. The couple lived in Goshen (Woburn) across the street from Capt. Samuel Walker, where Stanley Webber now lives on Main Street, Wilmington.

Richard and Samuel, twins, served in Capt. Heath's company of the Regiment of Sir Charles Hobby. This was sometime after Queen Anne's War. Eaton, the Reading historian, relates that 46 men from Reading served in that regiment, and this under the date of 1711. Obviously that was the beginning date. The record was probably until about 1725, for Samuel as a sergeant, served at Port Royal in Nova Scotia. He probably was not a sergeant when he was 12 years old.

To carry on the record of the Benjamin Harnden family, Samuel is recorded as living in Wilmington in 1739, for in that year he is twice recorded as "taking up" stray animals, one a "red ox, white in color" with both ears cropt, and the other a black mare. In that same year he moved to Killingly Connecticut, where his sister lived. He married a girl named Mary.

Richard, the other twin, disappears from the records after he enlisted in the regiment under Capt. Heath in 1725. Possibly he moved to what is now the State of Maine, or elsewhere.

The record on Samuel is confusing.

He seems to have been married, while a resident of Reading in 1729. His wife was Mary. The children were Samuel 1731, Elizabeth 1733, Susanne 1735, William 1736 and Sarah 1739.

It could have been that the emigration to Killington, Connecticut in 1739 involved a whole family.

Benjamin Harnden (the father) married a second time, in Andover in 1710 to Elizabeth Holt.

There were two children, Suzanne, born in 1712. She died unmarried in 1735. Barachius, born in 1713, married Sarah -- in Wilmington, 1733.

Benjamin and John, together took an active part in the Town of Reading in the years between the massacre and 1730, when their property was part of that which was set aside to be in the Town of Wilmington.

In 1713 the "North Precinct," of Reading, also sometimes called the "Second Precinct" was set aside for the purpose of having a church for worship, for those who lived north of the Ipswich River. John Harnden was elected Clerk of the precinct. The Moderator was Sgt. George Flint, who lived in what is now North Reading.

By 1720 there were 39 members in the second church, among whom were John Harnden, Benjamin Harnden and Benjamin Harnden, Jr. Also listed were Daniel Gooing (Gowing) and Francis Nurse, grandson of Rebecca Nurse of Danvers.

Small pox, a disease which killed many in those days was prevelant in Reading in 1720, and especially so, it was recorded, in the Second Precinct. Later the Second Precinct, in 1727, was subjected to a "terrible earthquake."

It was in that year that Benjamin seems to have attained the rank of Lieutenant, in the Trained Band (militia). He was so called from 1727 to his death in 1740.

John was elected a selectmen of Reading in 1709 and again in 1710. Benjamin was elected selectman in 1713 and 1719. In 1722 John was elected Deacon of the Second Church. He died in 1727.

Elizabeth had died in 1734. The death of her husband Benjamin in 1740 seems to have left no heirs for the house in which they lived, presumably the old home of Richard and Mary Harnden.

Someone must have occupied it. Eventually, it was owned by Benjamin Harnden, the son of the second John, but this was in later years. John (Deacon John) and Sarah (the second wife) were probably living in the new home built about 1706. He died in 1727.

It would seem that the Deacon John house was taken over by his son John, he who had married Mary Jaquith, of what is now Aldrich Road, Wimington.

John and Mary, like the first John and Mary, were to have tragedy strike their family.

In 1737 small pox (or some other disease) struck the people of Wilmington. Capt. and Mrs. Samuel Walker lost three children. The family of John and Mary Harnden lost four, one of whom was named John. He would have been the third of that name.

But there were still four sons and two daughters in that family to live and perpetuate the family.

Joseph, the oldest, married Esther Pierce of Wilmington. He died in the lines in Cambridge, 1775. Three daughters, Molly 1761, seems to have married Silas Trull of Tewksbury, 1793; Esther, 1763 married Rueben Buck, 1782; and Rachel, 1765 married Simon Furbush of Andover, 1786.

The fourth John, born in 1738, was the man who would fight at Concord with the Minutemen and in command of a company at Bunker Hill. He was known as Captain John, a name that he well earned. Born in 1738, he married Ruth Pierce of Wilmington in 1768.

By that time he had already attained the rank of Captain in the militia. He was known as Captain John for over 40 years in Wilmington, and while he served in the legislature. He was a sage and wise man.

Joshua became, it may be said, the best known Harnden. It was his home, at the corner of Salem and Woburn streets which became the Harnden Tavern. Today it is owned by the Town of Wilmington as an historical building.

Joshua, born in 1740, married Sarah Cornell, a Wilmington girl, in 1763. He has descendants in Reading. There were six children in the family, all of whom married. Joshua became Lieutenant in 1778, and later a Major, and finally a Colonel.

Benjamin was the fourth of the sons of the fourth John and Mary Harnden to serve during the Revolution. Born in 1744, he married Hannah Kidder of Tewksbury. He died in 1836, in the old homestead, at the age of 91, and his wife died three years later, also 91.

Benjamin and John marched with the Minutemen on April 18, 1775 on Concord Day. He became Lieutenant in the militia, and was always known as Lieutenant Benjamin, the second Harnden to be so called.

It was from Lieutenant Benjamin and Hannah Kidder that the Harndens today in Wilmington are descended. The late Atty. Philip Buzzell, a Harnden descendant, told the writer of his grandmother's description of Lieutenant Benjamin's home, at what is now 67 High St.

And, with Joseph dead, Joshua living in the Harnden Tavern, and Benjamin in the old original farmhouse, that leaves Capt. John Harnden as the man who lived in the house which was burned on August 3, 1958.

That was quite a fire.

Price of progress When this house was burned in 1958 to make way for Route 93, nobody realized that it had been the home of Capt. John Harnden, who fought at Concord and Bunker Hill. The house was built by his grandfather, Deacon John Harnden, whose family fell victims to the "Harnden Massacre."

Two school bus accidents Tuesday

Two Wilmington school buses were involved in minor accidents on Tuesday. Only one student received minor injuries.

The first accident took place on Glen Road near Lee Street at 8:40 a.m. A bus, driven by Paula McLaughlin of Salem Street, Woburn had stopped to pick up passengers. A large dog got on the bus along with the children. While the driver and some of the children were trying to get the dog off the bus, the dog hit the emergency brake handle, releasing the brake. The bus rolled back and hit a stopped car, driven by Sylvia Gouldsborough of Glen Road. There were no injuries.

The second accident occurred at 2:45 p.m. on Main Street at Silver Lake. A bus which had stopped to discharge passengers was struck in the rear by a car, driven by James Rossetti of Tewksbury. The driver of the bus was Andrew T. Mantis of Burlington Avenue.

One student, Adrienne Hoon of Harnden Street reported minor injuries to her wrist and hand.

Tewksbury health board votes to fluoridate its water supply

The Tewksbury Board of Health has voted unanimously to fluoridate all town water supplies. The vote was made in its meeting Monday, December 5.

The vote followed a discussion that lasted one and a half hours, most of which was with Fred Barker of Marcia Jean Drive. Barker is an engineer with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

Barker opened the discussion by saying that $50 million had been spent in Massachusetts in the preceding year for dental health. For a very small part of this, spent for a small concentration of fluorine in the water supplies, the people of this state can save many dollars.

The fluoridation program is endorsed, he told the board of health by the Dental Society and the New England Water Works Association.

One part per million (1ppm) does not alter the taste nor the characteristics of the water and does prevent dental cavities in children.

Barker has inspected all the wells of the town, with water superintendent Billy Wilkinson. It will be possible, he said, to concentrate the water supplies to a few points. The result will be five places at which the fluoridation of water will take place.

Fluorine, he said, is about 65 percent effective in the prevention of tooth decay. The discovery of the effectiveness of fluorine was made in Colorado, he told the board, by a dentist who noticed that children who had mottled teeth, from ingestion of naturally supplied fluorine, had not been affected by tooth decay.

Barker told the board of health that there is a federal program, administered by the state, to financially assist communities in obtaining fluoridation facilities of water supplies. As the result of this the State Department of Public Health has a program to have all water supplies in the state fluoridated by the year 2000.

"We pay the money. We do everything," Barker said. That statement was made relative to the supplying of materials and instruments.

The town has to pay for the electricity, and for the services of the person who sees to the fluoridation and inspects the processes.

In Tewksbury, Barker has been talking with DPW Superintendent Phil Pattison. The result is an estimate of one half hour per day labor, plus $300 per year electrical costs.

In addition to the equipment, the grant will supply the town with a two year's supply of fluoride.

There was a lot of discussion of facts and figures, by the board of health, before the vote.

Jack Lu, newest member, was concerned about the selectmen and about the finance committee members. He was in favor, he said, but he felt the the two boards might want to have something to say concerning finances. The agreement with the state would probably be involving the selectmen.

The point raised by Lu was not fully decided. The board of health was not certain what happened to funds that came into the town. Did any board have the right to handle funds, or was it all to go into the General Fund? Would a town meeting be needed, to vote the funds for fluoridation, even though the money had been provided by the state?

Lu was also discussing the possibilities of the vote. Tewksbury, he said is a town that regards the 2½ vote very seriously.

Chairman Joan Dunlevy remarked that it would be best to consult with Town Counsel Charles Zaroulis.

Member Mike Daley was also concerned. He regards the fluoridation as "a very saleable program," but he too wondered about the town counsel and the selectmen.

The discussion went on. Several times Barker reminded the board that it was the power, under Chapter 111, Section 8C of the General Laws to order fluoridation of water supplies.

At one point Joan Dunlevy remarked that the water received from Lowell is already fluoridated, and wondered about parents adding to the fluorine supply for children, by tablets in their drinking water.

If the order to fluoridate is signed, Barker said, there is a 90 day waiting period in which people opposed can protest. They have 90 days to get up a petition to have the question of whether the town fuoridate on the ballot.

Daley reminded the board that Tewksbury gets its water from several sources. He wants to be sure, he said, that any program was "consistent."

The start-up costs, he later remarked are $65,000, fully funded by the grant. The state supplies equipment and materials.

The board will possibly sign the order at their next meeting. Then it must be advertised and the 90 day waiting period begins before fluoridation of water supplies can start.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre LeFave, Jr.

Mary Neville weds Andre LeFave, Jr.

Mary E. Neville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Neville of Spare Street, Dracut and Andre (Andy) LaFave Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre M. LaFave of Columbia Street, Wilmington, were joined in marriage September 17 at St. Mary's Church, Dracut by the Rev. Lucien Loiselle.

Donna Neville, sister of the bride acted as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Ann, Linda and Julie Neville, sisters of the bride and Barbie LaFave, sister of the groom.

Bill Liston, close friend of the groom served as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Stephen and Jimmy LaFave, brothers of the groom; Jim Neville, brother of the bride and Al Lynch, also a close friend of the groom.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Lowell Lodge of Elks, where Kathy McAnespie, friend of the bride circulated the guest book.

Following a honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania, the couple is now living in Lawrence.

The new Mrs. LaFave is a 1979 graduate of dracut High School and graduated from the University of Lowell with a degree in business administration in 1983. She is now employed with Computervision, Bedford.

Her husband, a 1978 graduate of Wilmington High School is currently employed with Sweetheart Plastics, Wimington.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I believe that our town officials did not actually realize how significant the day they chose for the high school referendum question would be.

On November 22, 20 years ago one of the greatest tragedies in this century occured with the death of John F. kennedy. On our local level we've experienced a tragedy of different sorts in the defeat of this referendum article. Remember well that John Kennedy spent a lifetime following a simple rule that was "Don't ask what your fellow man can do for you, but what you can do for him."

Sincerely yours,
John J. DeMarco

Dear Larz:

I am 10 years old and really interested in wildlife. I live in Wilmington, Mass., where there is a lot of house construction being done. They have cleared away a lot of woodlands and filled a lot of wetlands. If they continue to keep this up lots of animals, rabbits, birds, turtles and many others will lose their homes.

I have loved and watched animals for many years and would hate to see them disappear now. To me they are the loveliest things I know and I would like to have them around for a very long time.

Mario DiFilippo

Dear Larz:

I would like to bring to the attention of parents of some child or children in the Burnap Street - Grove Avenue (Wilmington —Ed.) area a fact that disturbs me very much.

On December 4, my family set out Christmas lights around our house and on December 5, one or more of your children took 37 bulbs from our strings of lights on Grove Avenue and took them to Burmap Street where they smashed them senselessly.

It is not so much the cost that bothers me, but it is the idea that whoever did this has been in my home when there was nowhere for them to go and has probably been given parts for his/her bike when they had no money.

I can only hope and pray that I am giving my kids the proper guidance that seems to be lacking in the kids who smashed $9.00 worth of bulbs, because I would like to feel that my kids are above trying to destroy someone else's property and their Christmas spirit.

I will end this letter by saying that if it happens again and I can catch the culprits, I fully intend to prosecute and bring charges to the fullest extent of the law that I can.

I truly hope you can have the best joy for the holiday season.

Sincerely,
Dennis P. Hewitt, Sr.

Unfailing Prayer to ST. ANTHONY
"Blessed be God in His Angels and in His Saints"

HOLY St. Anthony, gentlest of Saints, your love for God and Charity for His creatures, made you worthy, when on earth, to possess miraculous powers. Miracles waited on your word, which you were ever ready to speak for those in trouble or anxiety. Encouraged by this thought, I implore of you to obtain for me (request). The answer to my prayer may require a miracle, even so, you are the Saint of Miracles. O gentle and loving St. Anthony, whose heart was ever full of human sympathy, whisper my petition into the ears of the Sweet Infant Jesus, who loved to be folded in your arms; and the gratitude of my heart will ever be yours. 13 Paters, Aves and Glorias.

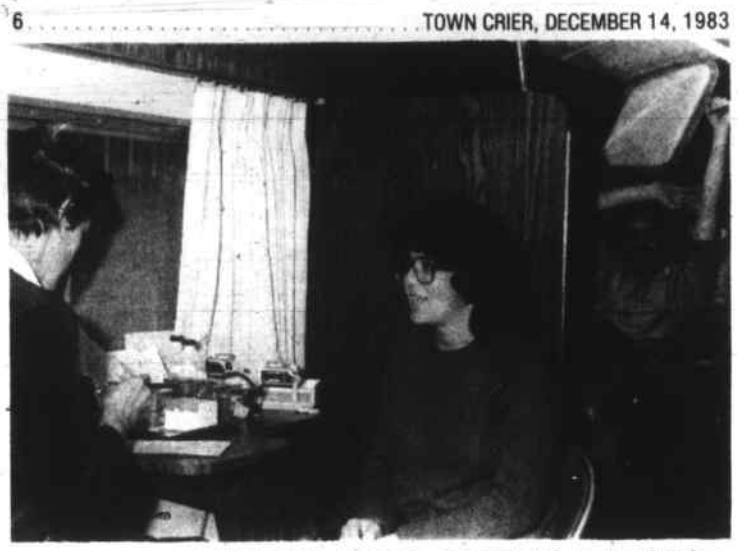

Signed:
E.R.

THANKSGIVING NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

Oh Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance.

Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return, I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked.

Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid, Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. I have had my request granted.
Publication promised.

Chamber of Commerce electric rate survey still going on

Recently, the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce had an electric rate survey printed in the Town Crier for residents interested in participating in one part of their investigaton into the price of power to the Wilmington community.

Avco has agreed to do the data processing of the surveys and the Chamber is eager to get this underway as soon as possible. The deadling for completed surveys will be Friday, Dec. 23.

For those interested in participating who missed the survey in the paper, additional copies are available at the Chamber office, and may be picked up any day from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The office is located at 500 Main St., in Dr. Ficociello's building, between Firestone and Fred F. Cain, Inc.

The Chamber of Commerce realizes it will take a good deal of effort to complete the survey and would like to thank the residents who have taken the time thusfar, especially at this very busy time of year.

Results of the survey will be forwarded to businesses and residents who have taken part in the survey.
